

Welders Paralyze Three Plane Plants to Get A. F. L. Charter

8,300 Already Out on Strike In Shipyards

Army, Navy Work Halted; Separate Bargaining Unit Sought.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.
LOS ANGELES, Nov. 4.—A welders' strike that nearly has paralyzed shipbuilding in the Long Beach, Los Angeles and Puget Sound yards was scheduled to branch into three California airplane plants at midnight.

With approximately 8,300 shipyard welders here and in the Puget Sound district out, fellow workers in Lockheed and Vega aircraft factories in Burbank and at the Consolidated Aircraft Corporation, San Diego, were under orders to walk out at 12 o'clock.

The strike revolves around demands of the United Welders, Cutters and Helpers' Union for an AFL charter. Members of this independent union contend they have to carry several AFL cards to retain their jobs.

The welders' walkout has forced closure of the Long Beach shipyard of Consolidated Steel Corporation, throwing 1,100 men out of work and halting construction of two $4,000,000 Army transports and two $2,000,000 cargo vessels for the Maritime Commission.

The strike spread today to the Los Angeles Shipyard & Drydocks Corporation, which is building two $16,000,000 Navy repair ships. There 28 welders deserted their torches.

Consolidated Aircraft posted notices that all welders who answered the strike call would be regarded as voluntarily having severed employment with the firm. The notices stated that the National Labor Relations Board three times this year had refused the welders' request for a collective bargaining election because the company has an agreement with the AFL machinists covering all hourly paid workers, including welders.

IT WAS LAKE RABUN—The hydroelectric plant at Lake Rabun in the north Georgia mountains has less than half its capacity in storage—and here's the reason. This scene, showing Harvey's boat house, on the right, and Hall boat house, left, has been a recreation spot for many Georgians. What was once Lake Rabun is now a mere mud bog in many places. Four electric plants in Georgia have only 17 per cent of their normal power in storage.

Talmadge Blamed; Regents Promise To Follow Rules

Reservoirs of Power Down to 17 Per Cent

Hydroelectric plants at four power reservoirs in Georgia were reported running with only 17 per cent of their capacity power in storage and little immediate relief was seen from the drought as Atlanta last night went into its second day of blackout of nonessential lights to save electricity for defense use.

OPM officials called for an even more strenuous compliance with the curtailment order, now said to be 95 per cent effective, and consumers were adjusting themselves to the reduction.

Georgia Power Company officials said their generators at Lake Rabun, Lake Burton, Jackson Lake and Bartlett's Ferry, on the Chattahoochee river, now have in storage only 23,600,000 kilowatt hours of electricity, whereas their capacity is 149,300,000 kilowatt hours.

Dam lakes were so low that in some places the reservoirs had been reduced to acres of mud. Although the weatherman promised showers Friday and possibly Saturday, officials saw no material let-up in the drought.

Lake Burton, the largest reservoir in the state, now has only 6,800,000 kilowatt hours as compared with a capacity of 97,400,000; Lake Rabun has 10,900,000 as compared with 24,100,000; Jackson Lake has 2,100,000 as compared with 5,800,000; and Bartlett's Lake has only 3,800,000 as compared with 23,000,000 kilowatt hours.

Mercy on Any Terms Is Plea Of Committee

Peters Absent as Accrediting Agency Closes Atlanta Hearing.

By LUKE GREENE.

The Board of Regents committee yesterday afternoon pledged "in advance" to do anything the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools deem "correct and proper" to keep the University System of Georgia from losing its accredited standing.

Amending its previous position, the committee appeared before the investigating body of the Southern Association just before it closed a two-day hearing at the Ansley hotel and placed the blame for the irregularities that took place in the University System on the Governor's "impatience of restraint."

Peters' Signature Missing.

The regents spent a large part of the morning preparing the statement which was signed by all members of the committee except James S. Peters, of Manchester, who did not accompany his fellow members into the hearing room for a second conference.

Apparently sensing the seriousness with which the investigating body was studying the Georgia situation and fearing that anything less than full capitulation might be hazardous, the regents committee quickly got together and drew up the statement which reviewed how the present crisis came about and begged for mercy on any terms.

When the hearing first opened Monday the regents spent approximately three hours with the investigating group and partially capitulated by promising that political interference would be eliminated from the University System in the future.

Pledged to Economy.

Although Chairman Sandy Beaver declined to release the statement to the press, it was learned that the statement blamed the Governor's "impatience of restraint" for the irregularities that took place in the University System.

It pointed out that the Governor came into office for a third term pledged to the cause of economy and that he failed to realize he could not fire a professor with the same ease that he discharged a highway employee.

The committee's "swan song" went on to say that because of the Governor's belief in loyalty he sometimes accepted the statements of friends without giving due consideration to them.

It added that if the committee saw fit to instruct the state board on what it should do to save the system, the Governor would carry out its orders to the letter, emphasizing that he was well known for "keeping his promises."

The committee went so far as to say it believed there was no racial problem in Georgia—a direct blow at the chief executive.

U. S. Navy Tanker Badly Damaged in Attack by Sub

All Hope Gone For 97 Men on Reuben James

Salinas Torpedoed Without Warning; Entire Crew Is Safe.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—(AP)—The United States Army and Navy have lost 122 men in connection with the Battle of the Atlantic, it was disclosed today, although there was no loss of life in the latest incident to be reported—the torpedoing of the U. S. S. Salinas, naval oil tanker.

The tanker, the Navy announced, was torpedoed "without warning" last Wednesday night while she was traveling in a convoy southwest of Iceland. She was seriously damaged but reached an undiscovered port in safety.

Even as new details of the struggle accumulated into a story of submarine-surface ship fighting without precedent, the Navy formally abandoned hope for those listed as missing in the torpedo sinking of the U. S. S. destroyer Reuben James west of Iceland.

Costly Loss.
That meant that the death list in the Reuben James incident stood at 97 officers and men—one of the most costly losses in modern American naval history.

Other losses have included 11 killed in the torpedo attack on the destroyer Kearny, 11 Navy men and an Army officer lost in a patrol plane crash last Sunday, an Army officer killed in a plane crash in Iceland last August, and a naval officer lost overboard from a destroyer.

The Navy reported today that the big patrol bomber had crashed into a mountain on an unidentified island.

British Rescue 1,276 Off Sunken U-Boats

Seizure of 5 French Vessels Running Contraband to Germany Reported by Admiralty.

LONDON, Nov. 4.—(AP)—The British navy disclosed today that its war against submarines had netted 1,276 officers and men rescued from sunken Axis U-boats, that it had seized off South Africa five French ships declared to be in German service and had damaged an Axis convoy in the English channel.

The admiralty did not say how many submarines yielded the prisoners or over what period they were captured, since "for reasons well appreciated, particularly by the enemy, our successes against the U-boats are rarely published."

Heavy Toll.
Officials, however, said the relentless search for the under-water raiders was levying "a heavy toll."

(The usual complement of the submarines used by the Axis powers is 30 to 50 men, but the number rescued in each sinking might have ranged from one up. Hence it is difficult to estimate how many submarines might have been involved.)

The only British losses listed in the actions against the channel convoy and against the French ships were one patrol ship damaged and five men wounded in the channel battle.

The admiralty said the French convoy intercepted and boarded off South Africa was escorted by a small armed sloop and added that this "operation is still proceeding." "The Vichy government have recently been attempting to run contraband for the Germans from the east to France in escorted convoys," the communiqué said in explanation of this encounter.

Elaborating on the restrained language of the admiralty communiqué, qualified sources said the Germans needed shipping badly to replace heavy losses in the Mediterranean and along the occupied coasts.

Vichy Plan Spiked.
"It is quite possible they planned to continue the Vichy ships in ocean service under the Vichy flag if they got through safely on this trip and the British showed any reluctance about stopping them," these sources said.

But the British showed no such reluctance, and bagged the entire convoy, which was escorted only by a French sloop.

The Vichy government, announcing that it had protested to Britain against the seizures, disclosed that the encounter occurred in the Indian ocean about 200 miles south of Durban and that the convoy was bound from Madagascar to West Africa and Europe.

The British communiqué listing the captured officers and men of destroyed submarines was couched in guarded language, disclosing no details.

Informed naval sources said that the number of Germans taken prisoner from submarines in the past six months thus was double the total from the start of the war through April.

Russia Speeds Disorders Grip 200,000 Tough Guys' to Rostov

Key to the Caucasus Given Support of Siberians.

LONDON, Nov. 4.—(AP)—Part of a special Russian winter army of 75,000 "tough guys" trained in the arctic reaches of Siberia is being rushed southward to bolster the admittedly hard-pressed defense of Rostov-on-Don, key to the Caucasus, a well-informed source here reported tonight.

About 200,000 men of this army, trained for more than six months past with skis, ski-planes and winter-type mechanized equipment, already have gone into the snowy front-line defense of Moscow, the source said, but another 200,000 are en route "to help out where they are most needed." This would be in the Rostov sector.

The principal worry of the Soviet forces still was an insufficiency of tanks.

This need was described as even greater than that for planes, for it was reported the Germans were beginning to feel the pinch in the air because of the loss of trained crews, whereas they held a 2-to-1 superiority over the Red armies in tank strength.

Payment to Bank Brings Arrest In Sale of Mortgaged Chickens

PORTLAND, Ore., Nov. 4.—(AP)—Sympathetic club women turned to the state supreme court today in their effort to free a young South Dakota farmer who sold a flock of mortgaged chickens for money to bring his family west.

The women, acting individually, put up money to repay the bank for the mortgage, and when the court refused to release the farmer, 29-year-old Julius P. Paulson, they raised an appeal bond and hired an attorney to carry the fight to the supreme court.

Paulson testified to selling the mortgaged chickens, but insisted he intended no wrong-doing. He found work in a plywood plant here and settled his wife and three daughters in a modest house. The first extra money he obtained he sent to the bank that holds the mortgage.

This payment was his undoing. The bank asked Portland police to arrest him.

Paulson told of selling the

La Guardia Elected; Loses Two Boroughs

'Little Flower' Beats Tammany, Other Democratic Organizations for Third Time.

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—(AP)—Fiorello H. La Guardia did it again, but this time it was a tussle.

For the third successive time he administered a beating to Tammany Hall, and the city's other Democratic organizations, not by such impressive margins as the two previous elections, but still enough to defeat the Democratic candidate, William O'Dwyer, the Irish immigrant boy who became Brooklyn district attorney and smashed the infamous Brooklyn murder ring.

Christopher D. Sullivan, leader of Tammany Hall, conceded the election of Mayor La Guardia at 11:15 o'clock.

O'Dwyer Congratulates.
At midnight O'Dwyer sent a telegram to the mayor expressing his sincere congratulations on La Guardia's victory, adding "Best wishes for a most successful administration."

In a supplementary statement O'Dwyer said: "It was a battle from the very beginning in the true American spirit. I wholeheartedly accept the verdict of the people."

Thus La Guardia was chosen to head the nation's largest city for four more years.

For the first time La Guardia failed to carry all five of the city's boroughs. He lost Queens to O'Dwyer by 92,853 votes and he lost Richmond (Staten Island) by more than 10,000.

Takes O'Dwyer's Brooklyn.
On the other hand, the mayor, who ran as the candidate of the Republican, American Labor, City Fusion and United City parties, defeated O'Dwyer in the prosecutor's home borough of Brooklyn; he carried the Bronx, the home territory of Democratic National Chairman Edward J. Flynn, and he swept right through Tammany's own bailiwick—Manhattan.

With only 348 election districts out of 4,059 yet to be heard from, the vote was:

La Guardia—1,061,074.
O'Dwyer—965,354.

Of the mayor's total at this point, 605,624 votes were Republican; 378,817 American Labor Party; 58,848 Fusion and 17,785 United City.

La Guardia's plurality over Jeremiah T. Mahoney, Democrat, in 1937 was 453,874. His plurality over John D. O'Brien, Democrat, in 1933 when he was first elected was 281,850.

At 11:15 o'clock O'Dwyer told

Halifax 'Survives' Egg Barrage

DETROIT, Nov. 4.—(P)—Unshaken by a barrage of eggs and tomatoes hurled at him by women pickets opposing this nation's entry into war, Lord Halifax, British ambassador to the United States, rounded out tonight a two-day tour of Detroit's arms production centers.

One egg struck Halifax as he passed a group of 25 parading women outside the downtown building where he visited with Archbishop Edward Mooney, head of the Catholic arch-diocese of Detroit.

An hour later the ambassador visited the Henry Ford hospital and received treatment for an eye irritation, but Cyril Cane, British consul here, said the trouble was not a result of the egg-throwing. The missile-tossing women carried such placards as "Remember the burning of the capitol in the War of 1812."

When the shower of eggs was loosed, Halifax resisted efforts of his detective-guards to hustle him inside the building, saying, "Don't hurry, boys. Let them have a good time for their money."

Detective Inspector Charles E. Searle, escorting the ambassador, also was hit by an egg. Identity of the picketing women was not ascertained by police. Mrs. Beatrice Knowles, president of a group called "the American Mothers," charged that the egg-throwers were members of a rival organization, "the Mothers of the U. S. A." But Mrs. Rosa M. Farber, president of that group, denied the charge and countered with an assertion that the American mothers tossed the eggs.

Mrs. Knowles said it was her group which appeared outside the Book-Cadillac hotel Monday and jeered Halifax. These women carried signs reading "Halifax is a warmonger." Mrs. Knowles described Monday's demonstration as "quiet," and added, "we don't throw eggs."

"We don't throw eggs, either," said Mrs. Farber of the rival group. First reaction to the incident in London was envy of any people who could spare eggs and tomaatoes for ammunition. Authoritative quarters maintained silence. Appearing this afternoon at the convention of the National Association of Real Estates Boards, Lord Halifax said that "there is not much hope for the future of the world after this war unless your people and my people can work side by side."

Japanese Irritated By U. S. Delaying Mail

TOKYO, Nov. 4.—(P)—Withdrawal of mail for the Orient from the Japanese liner Tatuta Maru before the vessel sailed Sunday from San Francisco led a Japanese spokesman today to describe the attitude of the United States Treasury Department as unfriendly.

"If they had wished to censor the mails, they should have given time," said the spokesman, Koh Ishii, of the cabinet information bureau. He said Japan was considering the possibility of a protest.

PROOF OF SHORTAGE—These acres of mud at the bottom of what was once the power reservoir at Bartlett's Ferry hydroelectric plant on the Chattahoochee river show vividly the effect of the drought. When full, the lake covers 5,600 acres. Now the water is 26 feet below the top of the dam and the number of kilowatt hours of potential power now in storage is one-sixth of capacity. (Story on Page 1.)

Two Are Killed As Observation Planes Crash

Army Craft Crack Up in Separate Carolina Accidents.

BENNETTSVILLE, S. C., Nov. 4.—(P)—Two Army observation planes crashed up here today and killed two men and injured three. Both crashes occurred at the Bennettsville auxiliary airport.

The first Army public relations headquarters at Camden said those killed were First Lieutenant

Joel White, of California, and Second Lieutenant Robert Womble, of Philadelphia. Both men died instantly. Private Harry Williams, of Landstown, Pa., suffered burns and was carried to a Bennettsville hospital.

The plane, from the 103d Observation Squadron based at Harborsburg Airport, Cumberland, Pa., fell when it reached a 50-foot altitude after a takeoff.

The other accident, which occurred several hours earlier, resulted in minor injuries for Second Lieutenant Clifton C. Garrett, of Haddonfield, N. J., and Second Lieutenant R. Oliver, of Wellesley Hills, Mass.

BODIES OF THREE FLIERS FOUND IN CALIFORNIA

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 4.—(INS)—The bodies of three Army fliers, victims of two separate air crashes last Sunday, were found in northern California late today.

In the cockpit of an ill-fated Army bomber which exploded in midair while flying over the Desolation valley area of the high Sierra Nevada mountains was Lieutenant L. M. H. Walker, of Salt Lake City.

Lieutenant Robert Agnew, 23, of Donalds, S. C., and his passenger, Dan Flisk, of Willows, Cal., were found crushed to death in the wreckage of an Army training plane three miles southwest of Pleasanton, Cal.

Regents Blame Talmadge, Ask For Clemency

who consistently has contended there was such a problem.

The statement pointed out that if the Georgia institutions were discredited, the principal ones to lose would be the 13,000 students in the system.

One authoritative source said that whereas the committee previously had asked for mercy "standing up," it got down on its knees and begged yesterday.

Regent Scott Candler was reported to have given hearty support to the resolution or statement presented by Beaver and made a speech emphasizing its essential points.

The resolution asserted that the State Board of Regents was ready to "clean house," but were only waiting for the association to say where to begin.

Peters in Manchester. One of the main factors in bringing about the present trouble in Georgia, the resolution said, was the failure of the Regents to recognize the authority that belonged to the accrediting association.

Appearing before the committee with Beaver and Candler were Regents L. W. (Chip) Robert, of Atlanta, and W. S. Morris, of Augusta. Peters left for his home in Manchester Monday night.

Shortly before the regents made their second appearance, Chancellor S. V. Sanford submitted a statement to the investigating body in which he said that expulsion of Georgia institutions would be out of all proportion to the irregularities. He said the University System would meet association requirements, no matter how drastic.

Before adjournment yesterday, the committee issued a general statement in which it pointed out that a verbatim record of all the facts had been kept and that copies of this record would be prepared for each member of the committee.

After the members have had an opportunity to study the record, the committee will assemble again, probably around November 11, in Nashville, Tenn., for the purpose of drawing up its report to be presented to the full association in Louisville, Ky., the first week in December.

Governor Unseen.

The Governor did not appear before the investigating committee during the two-day hearing.

The committee yesterday heard from Dr. Marvin S. Pittman, ousted president of the Georgia Teachers' College at Statesboro; Dr. A. M. Gates, who succeeded Pittman; Dr. Willis A. Sutton, city school superintendent; Dr. J. R. McCain, president of Ames Scott College in Decatur; Dr. Goodrich White, vice president of Emory University, and Dr. Henry A. Shinn, dean of the Lumpkin Law School at the University of Georgia.

Dr. McCain said he told the committee that any action in discrediting institutions of the University System would seriously hamper the development of a proposed University Center, which would embrace Tech, Emory, Agnes Scott, the Georgia Evening College and the University of Georgia. Dr. Pittman and Dr. Gates declined to discuss their testimony.

The conference committee members were: Chancellor O. C. Carmichael of Vanderbilt University, chairman; Vice Chancellor Alexander Guerry, of the University of the South, and President Richard C. Foster, of the University of Alabama. Several other educational groups had representatives at the hearing.

Roosevelt Urges All Citizens to Aid in Defense

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Nov. 4.—(AP)—President Roosevelt called upon every American citizen-civilian tonight to "do his share for defense."

"And with each of us doing his share," he said in a formal statement, "we shall leave no doubt in anybody's mind that we are and intend to remain strong and united. We shall preserve that genuine American way that distinguishes our living from the pagan slavery proposed by the would-be dictators of the world."

The statement was released to press, radio and newsreels to call attention to the fact that the President has proclaimed November 11 to November 16 as Civilian Defense Week.

The chief executive hinted at civilian hardships to come, but urged the American people to "join your neighbors in your town to serve your country."

"In our daily lives," he said, "we must halt the waste and unnecessary use of critical materials required for defense. We must work longer hours to produce the munitions required to defeat Hitler. And each of us must be trained in some task that is essential to our total defense."

It is not enough that the Army and Navy are growing stronger daily, Mr. Roosevelt asserted, adding:

"Each and every citizen, as a civilian, must do his share for defense."

Atlanta Youth Is Shot in Face; Suspect Held

Houston O'Neil, 18, in Critical Condition With Two Wounds.

Shot twice in the face, Houston O'Neil, 18, of 640 Pryor street, S. W., was admitted to Grady hospital last night in a critical condition.

O'Neil, Detectives W. S. Acree and P. H. Beasley were told, was shot as he walked on Glenn street, near the corner of Georgia avenue, by a Negro boy who fled without giving any reason for the shooting.

Kenneth Stoneypher, 18, 685 Garibaldi street, told detectives he was walking with O'Neil when the Negro approached and started firing at O'Neil.

Willie Brown, a 17-year-old Negro, living on Windsor street, was later arrested by Detectives Acree and Beasley and is being held at police headquarters on a charge of suspicion.

Grady hospital surgeons reported that one of the bullets struck O'Neil in his jaw, while the second bullet penetrated his nose.

U. S. War Effort Good, Duke Asserts

MIAMI, Fla., Nov. 4.—(AP)—Back from a six weeks' tour of the United States and Canada, the Duke of Windsor today reported the American war effort "amazingly good, considering the short time since it was started."

The Duke told newsmen at his tower apartment in the Biltmore hotel that he felt more optimistic about defense.

"I didn't feel pessimistic before," he continued, "but I've been reassured as a result of my trip."

"People who speak otherwise about the American defense effort are talking out of their heads."

Asked about the likelihood of American participation in the war, the Duke said sharply: "I didn't talk intervention."

Then he added: "However, a great many people said some nice things about my country."

President, First Lady, Princess and Falla Visit Town Hall.

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Nov. 4.—(INS)—Juliana, exiled crown princess of the Netherlands, stood in the modest green and white frame town hall of Hyde Park today and watched her weekend hosts, President and Mrs. Roosevelt, vote for election of their village officials in the first Democratic "clean sweep" since 1871 in the normally Republican stronghold.

Cameramen ran outside to depict their departure. The President got into the front seat of the big White House touring car alongside the chauffeur.

The First Lady and the Dutch princess got into the back seat. Falla, the President's black Scottie, was surveying the situation from a jump seat with his paws on the car's side.

"Turn around, Franklin, for the photographers," suggested Mrs. Roosevelt.

The President did so, but not long enough to suit the cameramen. "Darling, insisted the First Lady,

"will you turn around again?"

New Finn Attack On Murmansk Seen As Reply to U. S.

HELSINKI, Nov. 4.—(AP)—The Finns, today replying by effect if not by intention to the pointed statement by the United States government that Finland must cease offensive action against Russia if she wanted to keep American friendship, announced that an all-out Finnish assault upon Murmansk had begun, and added:

"The town (a far northern ice-free Soviet port of major importance) will be taken by storm within a few days should the Russian garrison refuse to surrender."

At the same time the Germans picked up the incident of American pressure on Finland to direct more abuse at Washington.

"No words are sharp enough," said a Nazi foreign office spokesman, "to characterize Washington's ghetto methods whereby the government, with gangsters at its head, in Jewish shamelessness and with pitiful dilettantism, tries to tell the Finnish people what to do."

(The spokesman's voice, by all accounts, was little short of a howl at this point; even the German radio remarked that his manner was "demonstrative . . . extraordinary.")

"POLICY" FOES FLAY WARNING TO FINLAND

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—(AP)—Foes of the Roosevelt foreign policy joined in a concerted attack upon the administration today for warning Finland to end its conflict with Russia. In reply, administration supporters charged them with endeavoring to divert attention from the real issue before the senate and the nation.

This, said Senator Lee, Democrat, Oklahoma, was whether the United States is to help those, meaning Russia in this instance, "who stand as a barrier between the United States and war."

The day's debate on neutrality act revision also brought declarations from Senators Bilbo, Democrat, Mississippi, and Lodge, Republican, Massachusetts, who previously had supported much of the administration foreign policy, that they would oppose removing restrictions which keep American ships out of combat zones.

Taft in Attack. Senators Taft, Republican, Ohio; Clark, Republican, Idaho, and Clark, Democrat, Missouri, participated in the criticism of the warning to Finland, with Taft asking in tones of deepest sarcasm whether this country had received any assurances from Russia that the latter would not attack Finland if and when it is victorious over Hitler.

"We will be deeply ashamed," said Taft, "for all time to come of our warning to Finland to cease a war which is essentially a defensive war."

Clark, of Missouri, challenged his hearers to name a "bona fide democracy" in Europe besides Finland and Switzerland.

Demand Called "Travesty" Clark, of Idaho, denounced this government's demand as a "travesty" in view of its opposition to the Russian invasion of Finland two years ago.

In the house Representative Hoffman, Republican, Michigan, Constitution.

referred to the warning to Finland as "one of the ways our President spreads the freedoms." "I guess Finland is one of those aggressor nations he has been talking about," Hoffman added.

Senator Hill, Democrat, Alabama, as well as Le, came to the defense of the administration. This government, Hill said, was only acting in behalf of its own interests by endeavoring to have Finland quit helping the Nazis.

HOOVER ATTACKS GOVERNMENT STAND

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—(AP)—Former President Herbert Hoover today issued a public statement protesting the attitude of the United States government toward Finland in relation to the conflict with Soviet Russia.

"Only two years ago the Communists drove six hundred thousand Finnish men, women and children from the homes they had held for five hundred years—without even bedclothes to protect them from the winter," he said. "True their armies have gone into Karelia, but formerly that was also mostly Finnish. Can America reproach them for taking the first chance to recover these homes and their former countrymen?"

"Has America lost all sense of human and moral proportions?"

Dr. Curtis Dixon Gets Study Leave

MACON, Ga., Nov. 4.—(AP)—Dr. J. Curtis Dixon, vice president of Mercer University, has been granted a three months' leave of absence to make a special study for the Southern Education Foundation, according to an announcement by Dr. Spright Dowell, Mercer president.

The request for his services came after he had been elected as Mercer vice president by the board of trustees, Dr. Dowell said, but before the appointment had been announced. He left today for Washington to assume his new duties.

The foundation with which he will be associated administers the George Peabody, John F. Slater, Anna T. Jeanes and Virginia Randolph educational funds.

Dr. Dixon served as vice chancellor of the University System of Georgia until the office was abolished on October 1, and became associated with Mercer University on October 15.

During his leave of absence he will continue his study of the background and program of Mercer, Dr. Dowell said. He will return to Macon on February 1.

U. S. Preparing Chinese Bases, Tokyo Claims

'Fighting Line,' Air Fields Laid to America By Japanese Press.

TOKYO, Nov. 4.—(AP)—Japanese-American efforts to reach an understanding were termed a failure by a bitter press tonight and the widely read newspaper Nichi Nichi charged that the United States was preparing "a fighting line against Japan" with air bases and munitions factories in the Chinese interior.

Chugai Shogyo said that Washington's support of the "United States' puppet regime" of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek indicated "American reluctance to fight Japan directly," and the newspaper Miyako declared "the time has come for the final showdown."

The cabinet decided today to convene a conference of prefectural governors November 24 to outline the government's policy in the present international situation. This will follow a five-day extraordinary session of the diet opening November 15.

Well-informed sources quoted by Domei believed that Premier General Hideki Tojo would tell the diet that there's a time limit on the talks with Washington.

125,000 in 2d Army to Get Broad Educational Program

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Nov. 4.—(AP)—Lieutenant General Ben Lear announced today a far-reaching educational program for the 125,000 officers and enlisted men of the Second Army, designed to insure that, if they are called on to fight a foreign foe, they will know what they're fighting for.

The Second Army commanding general declared "far too many soldiers consider that they are in service only 'because the government ordered it'."

The program is to be a part of regular training, prepared by nationally known historians and qualified officers, General Lear said. It will cover a three-month period and will include:

1. Geography and rudiments of international trade as affecting the United States.
2. History of the United States and the meaning of the Monroe doctrine, including the position of the United States as an arbiter in world affairs.
3. The constitution and the historical background of democracy.
4. Contrasting political systems—a discussion of Nazi, Fascist and Communist political states as compared to American democracy.
5. The present world crisis—a summary of conditions and events leading to World War II, its present status and the position of the United States.

German battles and methods of the present war, and organization activities of the United States Army also will be studied.

MAYOR OF CLEVELAND. CLEVELAND, Nov. 4.—(AP)—Frank J. Lausche, 46-year-old Democrat, became Cleveland's new mayor tonight. Lausche ended eight years of Republican city hall rule by defeating Mayor Edward Blythin. The Democratic victory was conceded by Representative George Bender, Cuyahoga county Republican chairman.

Former Bellhop British Author Hopes To Ferry Planes to RAF On War Crisis

George Cauthen, 21, Has Been Flying for Four Years.

A former bellhop at the Henry Grady hotel, who learned to fly a plane during his spare time, will leave Friday for Montreal, Canada, to become an overseas ferry pilot with the Royal Air Force. He is George Cauthen, 21, who has been flying four years and teaching it, too, for several months. He hopes to take a month's course at a salary of $10 a day and later become a ferry pilot at pay averaging $1,500 a month.

Formerly a student of Oglethorpe, Cauthen took private lessons at Candler Field and also attended Georgia Tech in his quest for a pilot's license.

His brother, Frank Cauthen, an Oglethorpe graduate, is already in service as a Naval ensign. Cecil Cauthen, another brother, is steward at the Henry Grady hotel. They are natives of McPee, South Carolina.

At Candler Field, George worked as an instructor with Pete Underwood and Pete Clay.

'All Safe and Well,' Salinas Fireman Cables Atlanta Mother

"All safe and well. Hope to see you soon." These seven words brought joy to the heart of Mrs. Essie Zimmerman, of 1129 Princess avenue, S. W., yesterday afternoon as her son, Robert, 25, by cable informed her that he and his companions of the Navy oil tanker Salinas had suffered no injury when their ship was damaged by a Nazi torpedo off Iceland last Wednesday night.

His cable confirmed a previous announcement by the Navy Department that none of the Salinas' crew were injured in the submarine attack.

Two other Atlantans and a Hartwell, Ga., boy were also on the Salinas. They are Dan Alston, 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. N. G. Alston, 2279 Stephen Long drive, Peachtree Hills, and Charles Edward Knox, son of Mrs. Pauline C. Knox, 465 Haas avenue, S. E., while Ensign M. L. Skelton Jr., of Hartwell, is one of the tanker's officers.

Mrs. Knox, who last night received a message announcing that her son was safe, said he enlisted in the Navy about a year ago. Alston had been in the Navy since a year ago this month while Zimmerman had been in the service for nearly three years.

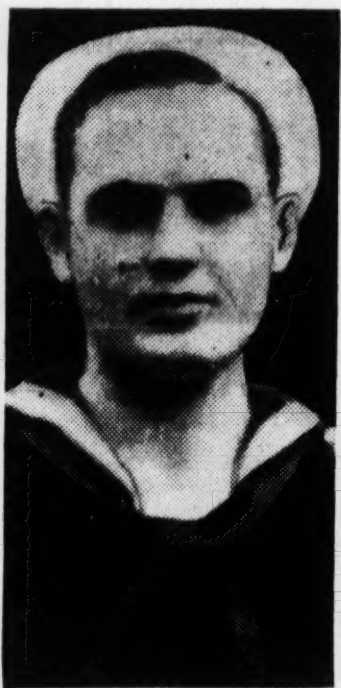

Alston, a fireman first class, September 19 had written his mother: "You won't hear from me for some time now, but no news is good news." He had attended North Fulton High school. Zimmerman will finish a four-year hitch in the Navy next May. He is also a fireman. In a letter to his mother last month he wrote: "I can't tell you where I am, mother, but I'm doing fine—except I've been cold for the past two months."

From that Mrs. Zimmerman said she gathered her son was in Iceland.

The Navy Department announced that none of the Salinas crew was injured.

Skelton, 23, a graduate of the University of Tennessee, is an ensign aboard the Salinas. He enlisted in the Naval Reserve here, and received his officer's training at Northwestern University.

ATLANTANS ON TORPEDOED TANKER—Robert Zimmerman, left, of 1129 Princess avenue, S. W., and Dan Alston, 2279 Stephen Long drive, two members of the crew of the tanker Salinas, torpedoed last Wednesday "somewhere off Iceland." Messages to their parents, received in Atlanta yesterday, reported they were safe.

Naval Tanker Is Damaged in Attack by Sub

fied island somewhere in the Atlantic area.

Only twice during the entire World War were heavier losses of naval personnel recorded than were listed in the Reuben James sinking. The worst disaster of World War days was the sinking by a submarine of the U. S. S. Ticconderoga, a cargo ship. Casualties included 214 dead, among them 99 soldiers and 2 Army officers.

131 Men Lost.

The other severe blow dealt the United States Navy by a World War U-boat was the sinking of the Tampa, a 1-118-ton Coast Guard vessel. About the size of the Reuben James, the Tampa went down without a single survivor, losing 131 officers and men.

The record of the United States Navy's encounters and losses in the present fight for control of the Atlantic sea lanes shapes up this way:

September 4, the destroyer Greer was attacked by a submarine which fired two torpedoes, both going wild. The Greer counterattacked, but there was no evidence the submarine was hit.

On October 17 the destroyer

Kearny was hit by one of three torpedoes fired at her by a German U-boat. In addition to the 11 men killed, two were badly hurt and eight slightly injured.

Slight Injuries.

Then on last Wednesday night the tanker Salinas was torpedoed, but not sunk and there were only slight injuries, the Navy said. This incident was kept secret, according to the official account, until the stricken tanker could make port.

Possibly about 24 hours later the Reuben James was hit, split in two, and went to the bottom apparently within a few minutes. Or her crew of 142 officers and men, only eight injured men and 37 uninjured survived.

Against this record of losses there were two offsetting factors. These were (1) the possibility that some German submarines have been sunk in the numerous attacks believed to have been made by American patrol vessels and planes and (2) the indicated reduction in losses of cargo ships since the United States began its heavy patrol of the sea lanes to Britain. Even Berlin's figures point to a marked reduction in such losses.

All Near Iceland.

The encounters between the naval vessels and submarines had several points in common. All have occurred within a relatively small area of the North Atlantic west and southwest of Iceland. And with the exception of the Greer incident all have taken place at night. To experienced naval observers this suggested that the German U-boats were employing in this war tactics virtually unknown, or at least used infrequently, during the World War.

FOUR "LOST" SEAMEN ARE REPORTED SAFE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—(AP)—At least four of the seamen listed by the Navy as lost in the sinking of the destroyer Reuben James were reported safe tonight by relatives.

Officials explained that last-minute changes in the ship's roster might account for the discrepancies and indicated that the official list might be changed later when further information becomes available.

It was believed that the total number of enlisted men missing would stand at 88, however, since replacements probably were made for those transferred.

Those reported safe were Frederick Arthur Bishop, third class torpedoman of Bayonne, N. J.; Vernon Everett Howell, fireman, of Thornville, O.; Jack Austin Campbell, of Greensboro, N. C., and Victor F. Krystynak, first class fireman, of Follansbee, W. Va.

In addition, one of the sailors listed by the Navy as having survived the torpedoing was found at Norfolk, Vincent Christopher Lane, third class radioman, explained that he had been transferred from the Reuben James recently after serving on her for 21 months.

No Word From Georgian On Torpedoed Salinas

M. L. Skelton, 23, of Hartwell, Ga., communications officer aboard the torpedoed Navy tanker Salinas, is a brother of Lieutenant-Colonel J. H. Skelton, of Atlanta, on duty at state selective service headquarters.

Colonel Skelton said he had no advice of his brother's experience until he read accounts of the torpedoing in an Atlanta paper yesterday. Their mother received a letter recently from Skelton giving personal information to the effect that he was "doing fine," but telling nothing of his official activities.

Colonel Skelton is in charge of the manpower division of the Selective Service Board.

Time Payment System Legal, Bankers Hear

President of Morris Plan Bank Speaks at Sea Island.

SEA ISLAND, Ga., Nov. 4.—(AP)—The time payment system of buying is still legal, delegates to the Morris Plan Bankers' Association convention here were assured today.

Instalment buying and borrowing has neither been outlawed nor even severely restricted, declared Arthur J. Morris, president of the Morris Plan Bank of New York, adding that government regulations of consumer credit had not become a burden either to business or to the public.

Government encouragement of thrift, as shown in the campaign for the sale of defense bonds, received approval of the association's president, Richard H. Stout, of Washington, D. C.

Stout advised businessmen and bankers to consider that "we are in a revolution, not merely a world war."

The revolutionary tenets as interpreted in this country are still gauged, as they were in 1933, to "a redistribution or a wider distribution of wealth," he said. "This means a complete readjustment and realignment of the wealth structure of the country."

"Studies of the buying and spending habits of today are as outmoded as the snuff box. Every business must revise its operations. We are gratified that the full powers of government are today turned upon encouragement of thrift. . . . Give us a thrift-conscious nation and we have little to worry about."

Stout predicted the middle classes will have to curtail expenditures, borrowings and thrift deposits while "the two classes that promise to come closer to living off the fat of the land will be the farmers and wage earners."

Morris Plan Bankers, with resources of $275,000,000, could "push loan volume to still greater levels," Stout said, but "if anti-inflationary efforts mean curtailment of loan volume, we will happily do our part. Our duty is to the nation and the economy, co-equal with safety for our depositors."

Julian T. Baber, of the United States Secret Service, Treasury Department, Washington, spoke also today on "By Their Faces Ye Shall Know Them," or "Know Your Money." His subject dealt with the various forms and methods of counterfeiting practiced in the United States.

Germans Hold Ex-Atlantan as Suspected Spy

Steele Powers, Ambulance Driver, Is Reported 'All Right.'

The German government finally admitted yesterday that it has Steele Powers, former Atlantan and driver of an ambulance, on the French front, under arrest on "suspicion of espionage."

In an Associated Press dispatch from Berlin the United States Embassy said the German government has disclosed that Powers is in custody.

Irked Over Aluminum Drive, U. S. to Stick to Junk Dealers

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—(AP)—The government shortly will sponsor the continuous year-round collection of waste material from householders by regular junk and scrap dealers, and has abandoned salvage campaigns like the recent aluminum pots and pans drive.

Lessing Rosenwald, chief of the new Bureau of Industrial Conservation, said that the OPM was far from satisfied with the handling of the "tea-kettles for battleships" aluminum drive conducted by Mayor LaGuardia's Office of Civilian Defense, although public response was excellent. Hereafter, he said, salvage efforts will be conducted through the channels of regular junk collectors and scrap dealers, with the government staying out of the picture.

Waycross Speaker Lauds Red Cross

Special to THE CONSTITUTION. WAYCROSS, Ga., Nov. 4.—Red Cross' contribution to the armed forces of the United States were described graphically yesterday before the Waycross Rotary Club by Howard A. Wilson, Red Cross field representative at Camp Stewart, particular emphasis being placed on the building of "morale" through Red Cross services. "If we should declare war today, there are few soldiers who tomorrow would accept a discharge from the Army," the speaker said, basing his statement on personal interviews with thousands of soldiers. "Contrary to impressions that may have been circulated, the morale of the armed forces is excellent."

The speaker gave vivid examples of the part played by the Red Cross, under its charter obligations, and under the regulations of the Army and Navy.

Dr. W. C. Hafford, chairman of the Waycross chapter of the Red Cross, made an appeal for roll call support, pointing out that the Waycross chapter embraces Ware, Clinch and Charlton counties. Rotarian William Glascock is roll call chairman.

Defense Work Is Urged Upon Women's Party

Mrs. Land, Mrs. Woodward Stress National Needs at Brunswick.

BRUNSWICK, Ga., Nov. 4.—(P) Women of Georgia received a call tonight to enlist in the civilian defense program to help their nation "be strong, to be ready, to be forearmed against every threat."

Mrs. Ellen S. Woodward, member of the national volunteer committee of the Office of Civilian Defense, gave the challenge in an address before the women's division of the Democratic party of Georgia in two-day annual session here.

Mrs. Max E. Land, of Atlanta, president of the women's organization, presided at the opening session tonight, and welcomed the delegates.

Two Fields Open. In her prepared address, Mrs. Woodward said there were two fields in which women could be of great service to the defense program—emergency medical service, and the defense health and welfare services.

The needs of civilian defense, she said, "place a demand upon us all. What you can do to help has become a practical necessity—a here and now job in every town, city and village of the country."

In answer to the question, "How can I serve?" Mrs. Woodward asserted there are as many solutions "as there are kinds of people or of problems."

She emphasized a lack of requirements for skilled workers, and said no woman should delay joining because she might feel she has no particular talent. The work which the untrained can perform, she explained, often relieves a skilled person from some task and thus helps the trained workers "to cover the ground."

"Civilian defense is big enough to absorb all our energies," she declared, "and it entails a thousand little tasks small enough to utilize all our scraps of time and all our human talents. Whatever you can put your hand to, the 'help wanted' sign is out."

The convention opened tonight with the banquet at which Mrs. Woodward spoke, and will continue through tomorrow. Other speakers will be James S. Peters, chairman of the state Democratic executive committee, and Colonel Irvine Bester of the fourth regional Office of Civilian Defense.

Defense Stressed. Mrs. Land also stressed national defense and outlined many ways in which women can serve the nation in its defense program. "We realize," said Mrs. Land, "that if Nazism and Hitlerism are not destroyed, there will be no political parties and no democracies, then we can forget Yorktown and Gettysburg and start fighting all over again for our existence and a free nation."

"How can Lindbergh and his group say that if the Axis wins, we Americans can do business with Germany as usual and in our own way? If Great Britain goes down, the Axis powers will control the continents of Europe, Asia, Africa, Australia and the high seas, and they will be in position to bring enormous military and naval resources against this hemisphere."

"It is no exaggeration to say that all of us in the Americas would be living at the point of a gun, a gun loaded with explosive bullets, economic as well as military."

Preceding the address Dr. B. H. Minchew and Dr. B. E. Collins will entertain the members of the society at a dinner at the Phoenix hotel at 7:30 o'clock.

An empty house is more expensive than a Want Ad in The Constitution that will rent it.

Blind Labor

The public, apparently, can be damned in its belief in the responsibility of labor. The country, from all outward appearances, is but a minor consideration to the leaders of labor.

Two events, one Sunday and the second Monday, evidence the attitude of labor's leaders and force the conclusion labor refuses to face the seriousness of the days and is willing to go down the same path as France.

A Gallup poll revealing the public by a large majority did not believe in the unionization of government employees hardly had been printed before the CIO announced it would open a gigantic drive to recruit these employees, whose commander-in-chief, the President, recently shook the wind out of the sails of John L. Lewis.

It should be pointed out government workers are chiefly under the protection of civil service, they enjoy working conditions generally far better than those in private employment and their salaries are mostly more than fair. It also is axiomatic that workers cannot strike against the government. Unless Lewis intends to disregard this long-established unwritten law, there is no basis for CIO unionism in federal employment, of the type which evidently is being planned. It will be recalled an AFL union for a long time has functioned as a representative of federal workers and this union has operated in a realistic, level-headed manner.

The second event involves the strike call of the long-lines experts of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, which would involve all commercial transactions, the Army and Navy communications network, teletype-writers so much used in directing transportation of food, acquisition of food by the Army and Navy, transportation of defense materials and the interchange of communications vital in defense industries, the transmission of news and other extremely important elements in national life at this time.

It is a great pity the responsible elements cannot seize control and stop the disastrous plunge of labor toward its own destruction. Unionism cannot function without the support of the public. It can be wiped out by the anger of the public, even though that anger be damaging to the public in the long run. Yet this public anger today is mounting in proportions which can only end in the repressive legislation labor-haters of the country have sought for many years. Not even that great and good friend of labor, the President, has been able to maintain his friendship in the face of utter disregard of the nation's danger.

The friends of labor tremble when they consider the possibilities inherent in congressional legislation under the whip hand of those who hate labor. Yet it is entirely possible the things labor has fought for years can be brought back in the space of a few short weeks because of the public-be-damned attitude of a handful of misallied labor leaders.

Daniels Resigns

Josephus Daniels, of North Carolina, has resigned his post as ambassador to Mexico. It is, perhaps, typical of the man that he held his important post, despite personal inconvenience and sacrifices, until our relations with the neighbor republic across the Rio Grande had reached a thoroughly friendly and cordial state.

For the six difficult years of the Cardenas regime Mr. Daniels labored with utmost tact and patience for the "good neighbor" policy with Mexico. He did a notable work, through all the difficulties of the Cardenas policy of expropriation of land and oil properties.

Now, since the inauguration of President Manuel Avila Camacho, last year, the day of greater friendship and better understanding between the two nations has begun and, undoubtedly, Mr. Daniels felt that he could, at last, lay down the reins of public duty and retire to the quieter life of his home in Raleigh and the less strenuous attention to his private affairs.

Few men have served their nation more faithfully or better than Josephus Daniels. As secretary of the Navy in President Wilson's cabinet, through the hard years of the first World War, and later as ambassador to Mexico, he has earned a place in the grateful memory of his country that will not be forgotten as long as American history is written.

In Washington, hotels are more crowded, even than in World War days, when three-cushion games were played around sleepers on billiard tables.

We Dare Not Fail

Today, at noon, workers in Atlanta's 1941 Community Fund campaign will gather at the Ansley hotel and report their progress toward the goal of $75,000. At the last such meeting, on Friday last, two-thirds of this amount had been given, or pledged.

The time for the campaign is drawing fast to a close. Volunteers, as are all the workers, cannot neglect their private affairs, indefinitely, for any cause. It is sincerely to be hoped the full amount asked will be subscribed in the reports to be made today.

Atlanta dare not fail in this campaign. The Community Fund is the most intelligent, best organized and most productive method ever devised for the support of agencies working for human betterment. Thirty-four such Atlanta agencies receive their financial support through the Fund. The giving to this one annual campaign, obviates the necessity of responding to 34 separate appeals for help, every year.

Other cities, recognizing the increased need and the greater importance of these agencies in these days of national emergency, have given in greater volume than ever before. They not only set higher quotas, but exceeded those quotas, substantially.

Let it never be said of Atlanta that she lagged at the tail of the procession of the cities in such a cause as this. For this is a cause that appeals, supremely, to good citizenship, to generous hearts and to constructive-minded men and women who realize the value of investments in good citizens and good neighbors for the future.

Winter sets in at Moscow, and according to Napoleonic precedent the Fuehrer should presently be turning homeward with no future, no social security and no dice.

Spain and the Axis

The role Spain is playing in the Axis is becoming increasingly clear as Latin American republics uncover evidence of Falangist activities duplicating Nazi intrigues. There is ample evidence of co-ordinated functioning of the Fascist organizations.

Cuba, for example, has ousted the Spanish consul general and now is demanding the surrender of the local Falange leader hiding in the Spanish embassy. He was trying to leave the country when examination of his baggage revealed incriminating photographs.

Spain in the past years has attempted to give the impression it is not tied in with the Hitler machine, yet reports are mounting of co-operation between Spanish Fascists and Germans which hint a full-fledged partnership with Spain serving as a major blind in the purchase of raw materials for Hitler. The activities of the Falange in South America also hint this tie-up which Franco is not strong enough to make open in his own country.

Neutral sources, incidentally, report that Franco and his Falangists are nearing the end of their rope and that the starving people of Spain are as ready to revolt as any peoples of the occupied lands. Certain it is Franco will not survive a democratic victory. Possible it is Spain well may become the landing place of the democratic army which in the final analysis of this war must invade Europe.

As with hash, one no longer has to make a war. It accumulates.

Only hunting story we've heard so far this fall along the line of pulling a shotgun through the fence by the barrel is Goebbels'—about the Kearny torpedoing itself.

For Thanksgiving, the soldier in camp is to eat grapefruit, shrimp, soup, turkey, cranberry sauce, candied yams, mashed potatoes, peas, corn, mince and pumpkin pie, cheese, nuts and coffee, then he's expected to go out and fight the Blue Army.

For not coming out of the huddle promptly, a southern eleven was penalized twice on the same play. Perhaps one of the dice was lost in the grass.

Georgia Editors Say:

NOTE NO OR DON'T KICK

(From The Vidalia Advance)

Next year the American people will pay the heaviest taxes in our history. They will pay willingly every dime that is needed for real defense. But they will resist being forced to pay now for government "luxuries" and nonessentials. Political spending for unnecessary activities is nothing short of a disgrace. For instance, costly WPA "art projects" have again been given official approval. And this is done at a time when the cost of defense will be a great hardship on small incomes, no less than big, and when we are told business cannot continue as usual, and when all must "sacrifice."

It has been reliably estimated that the normal cost of government could be cut by a billion or more dollars a year without imperiling or eliminating any essential activity. But congress won't move a single step in the direction of economy until the people demand it through their action at the polls. So don't kick at waste until you are ready to vote an emphatic "no" against individuals and agencies that countenance waste.

WASHINGTON PARADE

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.

OLD NAZI CUSTOM WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—It has become the established custom of the Hitler-Goebbels machine to falsely accuse of aggression before launching an attack. The record of such tactics is too long and too well known to require repetition.

But in considering the latest Hitler charge, growing out of the sinking of the destroyer Reuben James, that the United States has attacked Germany, it is well to bear in mind some of the more outstanding examples of this policy in the past.

Preliminary to Munich, Hitler, before making his demands on the Czechs for the surrender of Sudetenland, trumped up all sorts of charges concerning the treatment of Germans.

Before violating a peace treaty the Nazis had with Poland, he accused the Poles of making war on Germany.

ATHENIA TORPEDOING When the Athenia was torpedoed, first British ship to be the victim of sinking the vessel as a means of arousing American sympathy. Prior to invading Denmark, Norway, Belgium and the Netherlands, he hurled charges against the little countries of not maintaining neutrality.

Coinciding with his declaration of war with Russia, made in violation of a ten-year nonaggression pact between the two countries, he shouted the usual accusations of Soviet duplicity.

After the first American destroyer Kearny was struck by a torpedo with the loss of 11 lives, the Nazi propaganda machine initially denied German responsibility, then accused President Roosevelt of deliberately ordering the naval vessel sunk to arouse public support of war measures.

Now it is admitted by Hitler that both the Kearny and the Reuben James were hit by Nazi submarines, but he says our ships attacked first.

BASED ON MEIN KAMPF All of this adds up to the philosophy expounded by Hitler in his book Mein Kampf—that, if you tell a lie big enough, some part of it will be believed. It reflects the moral tone of the Nazi propaganda barrage used to confuse victims and make a German victory less costly. It has been the prelude to every ruthless attack by the Goebbels machine on the consistent answer to those who have opposed achievement of his aims.

What has made the Nazi machine the plunderer of nations that it is, the chief prevaricator of modern times?

A new and interesting answer has just been given by former Warden Lewis E. Lawes, of Sing Sing prison, one of the most noted criminologists and sociologists of the country. After observing every conceivable type of lawbreaker at the famous New York penal institution for some 21 years, the former warden says Hitler is a product of the same forces that forged the Dillingers, the Crowleys, and the Capones.

FRUSTRATED CHILDHOOD "Like many people whose viciousness is an outgrowth of a frustrated childhood, Hitler," says Warden Lawes, "was reared in an unloving home by an iron-handed father, who was a drunkard and a man with a bad temper."

"Adolf Hitler was a poor student, taunted by his classmates as a failure. During his early years, the future Fuehrer, foaming with hatred against the society that had scorned him, made several attempts to some measure of prestige."

"He strove to become a portrait painter because he thought an artist could travel among the elite and acquire social recognition. Again he was a failure. But he so craved a position of honor that he forged paintings and tried to sell them as his own. When the forgeries were discovered, of course, the thwarted man was disgraced once more."

JUST GANGSTERISM Warden Lawes goes on to say that "Fascism is simply gangsterism legal-ized, and that Hitler's lieutenants, for the most part, are men with criminal pasts."

Goering he describes as an "elephantine racketeer whose genius for organization keeps the Nazi machine well oiled." He alleges that at one time the No. 2 Nazi leader "extorted money from the owners of jewelry stores and art galleries," while "Robert Friesler, secretary of the Reich ministry of justice, served three terms for embezzlement."

The former Sing Sing warden is convinced that Hitler falls in the class of criminals who seek nothing but power in the underworld, merely because they love power.

"LITTLE HITLERS" "Whenever one studies the case histories of such types," he declares, "one can usually note a frustrated childhood, an unsavory environment, and a warped personality. Those men may be called little Hitlers. . . . But they were little Hitlers only because their tongues were not as lyrical as the Fuehrer's—because the henchmen around them were not particularly shrewd and cunning. Above all, they were merely little Hitlers because their goals were not as stupendous and far-reaching as the Nazi dictator's."

Hitler, he asserts, represents the super-criminal of this type, the stature of which we have never seen before.

By RALPH T. JONES.

Constructive Program.

Or perhaps I should say programs.

Monday evening, for the first time, I visited the headquarters, at 430 Pulliam street, of Atlanta's Missions, that organization directed by Rev. Felton Williams, which is tackling the social problems of Atlanta's less privileged groups on realistic, constructive basis.

And it was right interesting.

The house, which was acquired because it was in the general vicinity of just about the worst slum district in the city, is large, adapted to some of the purposes desired and, it is hoped, can soon be adapted to them all.

And you can't fail to be impressed with the beautiful way in which the place is kept. It is an old, old house, yet there is no trace in its atmosphere of that odor of ancient wood and decayed materials which so often permeates ancient edifices. It has been beautifully painted and repaired and is on spick-and-span condition.

Who does all the work to keep it so, I don't know. Two young ladies are in charge, under the general supervision of Mr. Williams. Miss Bond and Miss Cagle, I suspect there are competent helps for much of the work. In fact, for some of it, I know there are.

Pilots' Club Steps In.

For instance, there is that splendid organization of business women, the Pilots' Club. They have recently taken charge of the class for the older girls. That work is just beginning, but it is full of bright promise.

There are classes for the younger girls of the neighborhood. Where they talk and play games and generally get acquainted. They go to the Mission camp, on weekends, for a breather in the country. That is the camp where, all summer groups of the most wretched and hopeless kids of Atlanta's streets are taken for a week or two, where they get plenty of good food to build them up physically, where they learn to play in the great open fields and where they learn that there are really swell folks in the world who will give them a better chance to prepare for life than they can find on the streets and vacant lots where they usually play.

There is a mothers' club at the mission, where the older women come for mutual help and to learn better ways of living. There is a sewing club among these women, where they take the remnants of clothes unfit for any kind of use man use and remake them into quite decent and warm garments.

There is a cooking school, where expert dietitians teach them how to better plan their family meals and how to make a mighty little go a long way in nutritional value.

The Red Cross is starting, there, a class in care for the sick. How to nurse a sick person and attend to all the little details that, combined, so often spell the difference between recovery or death.

And there are other activities at the mission, too numerous to detail here.

But don't forget the children's church, where scores and scores of youngsters go every Sunday morning, where they learn righteousness and love of country, where they are taught those little details that make life so much easier.

Not a Nice Neighborhood.

At the risk of offending some good people who live on that street, I can't describe the area through which Pulliam street runs as anything but depressing. Old houses, in bad repair. Frantically overcrowded. Narrow streets and rampant poverty. Sickness and hunger and despair are all too frequent, there.

That is why Atlanta's Mission established its headquarters there. It was felt that the most effective effort could naturally be exerted where the need was greatest.

Mr. Williams has a dream about a combination play and church house, on the vacant space at the rear of the Pulliam street house. There is available a space about 60 by 50 feet. And he has visions of a great, serviceable neighborhood center there. A place to accommodate all the children who want to attend the children's church, but for whom there is room for only a few, nowadays.

For the girls' club, which overflows the accommodations available every time it meets.

But to make the dream come true would require about $10,000. And who has $10,000 lying around loose, suitable for investment in humanity?

Do you know anyone?

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—This is one of my constructive days and the following proposals are offered in answer to the common plaint that disclosures of criminality in these dispatches should be accompanied by a plan to mend the wrong. My recommendations are not original, but are cribbed from many debates and from the obvious. Indeed, the reason why I have so seldom bothered to propose remedies has been that the very evils themselves instinctively suggest their own cures.

First of all, I suggest that the open-shop principle be established by law, preferably by amendment of the Wagner act. I put this one first because it is the most controversial of all. The open-shop has been attacked savagely by the labor union, and by a considerable standing too, but he is, after all, only a defender of a fundamental human and constitutional right of the American citizen. The open-shop merely says the American citizen should not be compelled to place himself under the government and regulation of private groups or to pay tribute to any private group for the right to work.

Pointedly Ignored

This principle is not abrogated in so many words by the Wagner act, but it is pointedly not recognized and the intention of the act to ignore it is admitted by Senator Wagner during the debates which preceded adoption. He stubbornly refused to permit any amendment which would have penalized a union for coercing and intimidating a citizen to make him join, while demanding that an employer be exposed to punishment for equal and similar coercion and intimidation.

Mrs. Frances Perkins and Roosevelt both have fervently admitted the rightness of the open-shop principle, but only in a quick whisper, as though they were ashamed to insist on this right. Nevertheless, they are on record and surely nobody on the other side of the question will call them labor baiters or union busters for this, although others who have said the same thing, but louder and more frankly, have been so described.

Financial Accounting

Next, inasmuch as the unions of the country now collect, one way and another, about one billion dollars a year from the workers and except in a few rare cases, give no intelligible accounting, a law should be enacted compelling all unions to submit their financial affairs to public supervision. I know others have estimated the annual take at one-half a million, but my figure is closer in reality.

One of the wisest union men in the country told me that he and several other professionals, discussing this estimate of mine one day, decided that I was almost a billion short, but I will stick to a round billion and point out that great temptation and that no harm this much money constitutes a great temptation and that no harm and only good could come of such a reform.

Limit on Salaries

I would also limit by law the salaries of union officials, local as well as international, and would abolish dual and triple job-holding and duplicated expense accounts. These unions operate under special favor from the community as a whole and the whole public thus has a right to provide that they shall not be exploited into private concessions.

I hope I hear no objection, because anyone who objects would be arguing that there should be no ceiling on the profits of the union, although ceilings have been established in other fields and the Internal Revenue even limits the salary that may legally be paid to corporation officials and employees.

Honest Elections

I would insist on honest elections in unions. At present we insist on elections, but never on honest elections, and we all know, by experience in our public voting, that there is a great difference between an honest election and one in which one side or the other stuffs the ballot boxes. I would provide prison sentences for men who steal an election in a vote to select a bargaining agent and similar punishment for crooks who steal elections to union office in the locals and internationals.

And, of course, something, would have to be done to prevent false strikes, so I would require a super-strike vote on every strike issue and destroy the power of the union official to extort money from employers by threatening to call out the men.

These proposals leave us still wanting some smaller but quite important reforms, but they would do for a start and they would harm nobody but the individual dictators, such as John Lewis, and crooks and Communists and would benefit the whole country and particularly the rank and file.

Beyond These Hours.

Whatever destiny new days may bring, Beyond uncertain, present hours we know, Let such a time as this be one bright thing Eternal now, like some long lasting Of setting sun behind a purple hill. And when we walk an autumn mile through wood Or golden field, or past a rustle mill, Let pride be ours that we have understood A part of Nature's plan. Nor let us fear The thought of loving life too much to give One moment up, and share a bitter But ever cherish this—today we live! And think, tomorrow, may mean good-bye. Some things like love and beauty never die.

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH MCGILL

CARL SANDBURG There isn't much difference between the average politician when it comes to honesty and citizenship.

Not much, if any. The politician, indeed, has come to be somewhat cynical and contemptuous of the average businessman-citizen. He has grown so because he so often has had businessmen come to him and offer something—money or support of influence—in exchange for some special privilege.

The politician too often sees the average citizen as a man who wants a special privilege.

I know, for instance, two men high in business and finance whose splendid speeches on the need for honesty in politics always cause certain politicians to laugh and loud. They know these men have used their power for political corruption in obtaining special privilege as often as they have been able. They know how often they have "retained" certain persons able to bring about certain influences; how often they have contributed to certain campaigns; how often they have had the legislature in hand.

These politicians whom I know always enjoy these speeches and others by men who have been to them, secretly and solemnly, offering pay, of one kind or another, for some special privilege. The speeches often cause them to become really hilarious. You can imagine how much attention they pay to the ringing speeches in behalf of honesty in politics. It gives them more assurance than ever that the greatest weapon and security they have is the selfish motive in human nature and the desire for special privilege.

I thought of all this Monday night, listening to Carl Sandburg speak at Emory University to a packed auditorium.

THE "THING" CAME Sandburg was talking about Lincoln. He is the greatest authority on Lincoln. He was saying how very few of the men, in office or in business or finance, realized what really was happening in history at the time the War Between the States was coming nearer and nearer.

He mentioned Charles Sumner, the verbose senator from Massachusetts, whose speeches fill 18 large volumes. "You can read them all and on each page you will say, 'Nobody home,'" said Sandburg. Sumner once pompously told Julia Ward Howe, who came to him about an issue:

"I am not interested in men, but in principles."

"Why, Charles," said Mrs. Howe, "not even God has gone that far yet!"

Sumner never knew what it was all about. Neither did Jefferson Davis. They had no sense of history.

Robert E. Lee had a sense of history. So did Lincoln. So did Georgia's little Alexander H. Stephens.

It was interesting, Sandburg said, to read thousands of letters written in the period immediately before the war and in its early years, and to see how little people realized what was happening.

Then he said: "We have only to look to Germany and see the men of wealth and of success supporting Hitler because he seemed to promise them their own possessions would be kept safe. All the while they never saw 'The Thing' coming which was to take all they had."

"Look in this country," he said, "and see how few there are who have any sense of history; at those who are willing to encourage 'The Thing' in this country if they think it will make their own possessions secure."

It made one think of France and its fall; of Louisiana and Huey Long; and of Georgia and other states, where there are those of influence and wealth who are willing to support wrong and corruption if it will promise them security.

LINCOLN'S POLICY Lincoln had no policy. Without at all referring to Roosevelt and the howl by his critics, Sandburg, undoubtedly meant to refer to him. His critics demand a statement of "Policy."

"If Lincoln were President now I know what he would be doing," he said. He would be bowing his head and taking meekly all the abuse, lies and vituperation which was showered upon him daily.

"He once said: 'My policy is to have no policy.' That was at the start of the war."

"Three years later he wrote a friend, 'I have been controlled by events.'"

"He never moved farther than events justified."

"I hear people speak of him and write of him as if he never made an error, as if he always knew what to do and when. Actually, there was only one issue on which he would not have compromised. That issue was the Union. He would have compromised on every other issue."

"So, today, we are controlled by events. We cannot have any more policy than we have got. We cannot move faster than events justify."

He told of seeing a senator from Illinois eating lunch in the senate lunch room. He went to him and told him that he had never been against him but would be unless he changed his policy.

"I saw him put on the martyr's cloak and heard him say resignedly he would follow his course if all deserted him."

"Senator Vandenberg, the cloak of the martyr looks very new upon you," I said.

He was grand, was Sandburg, talking about Lincoln and about America and its people.

His voice is like a pipe organ, a bass organ.

You might do worse than to set out on his six volumes on Lincoln for your winter's reading. Two volumes on "The Prairie Years" and four on "The War Years."

Any Kind Word Uplifts People Who Have Known Only Shame and Humiliation

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

A soldier named Grant, as yet unknown to fame, sent a final warning to the Confederate commander at Fort Donelson. It ended with the sentence: "I propose to move immediately upon your works." Having given the warning, he proceeded to move.

When the words were carried throughout the north by telegraph, they electrified the nation. They were printed in bold headlines on the front page of every newspaper. Men shouted them to one another across the street. They were immortal words that seemed to rank with all the gallant phrases of martial glory. They equalled "Don't give up the ship!" "We have met the enemy and they are ours!" "Go ahead, damn the torpedoes." They gave a nation heart and hope and courage.

Now all of this doesn't make sense. The words aren't that good. They are, in fact, simple and dull and commonplace. Why, then, did they set the nation wild with joy?

Dudley Glass

Observant editor of the Elbert Star states as a fact that on last Friday a huge convoy of jaybirds was seen taking off for their weekly flight to hell. But instead of the traditional grain and sand each carried an Elbert pecan in his mouth.

I do not like to start an argument with an ornithologist, but either Elbert jaybirds are mighty big or Elbert pecans are far below grade. I'll admit that a good-sized jay could tote a pecan a few hundred yards, though it would throw him out of balance and maybe into a tailspin, but all the way to hades? I doubt that. Though I'll concede the route is supposed to be not so far for a number of sinners.

It is of course, a scientific fact that jaybirds are never seen after dawn on Fridays because they all fly to hell that day—for some reason. Just as the swallows fly away from the California monastery of San Juan Capistrano and invariably return on St. John's Day. Which demonstrates their intelligence, or memory. I couldn't tell when St. John's Day comes around if I were standing on the gallows with a rope around my neck and offered a pardon for the right answer.

But I've often wondered about jaybirds and Friday. For years I've promised myself to spend a Friday in my backyard and see if any jaybirds show up. But always something interferes. I know a couple of blue jays infest the premises every other day and chase away all other birds—or try to. But I can't swear about Friday. There's a tradition that nobody ever saw a dead gray mule. I never did. Did you? But so what? I observe dead mules but rarely, no matter what their color. Does that prove gray mules never die? If they don't, where are they? There'd be a million in Georgia by now.

Anyway, the jaybirds are supposed to tote a grain of sand to hell every Friday—I don't know why. All I hope is that some day in my time they'll get too close to the fire—and never get home again. Or not to my back yard.

Gazettes and Strads

I dislike bringing this up again, but another rural acquaintance has brought me a copy of the Ulster County (N. Y.) Gazette—if I recall the name correctly—published away back in whatever year George Washington died and carrying the first complete story about his funeral.

That paper is as familiar to me as The Morning Constitution. I've seen more samples of it than I have of Stradivarius violins, and they run into millions, I think. Because some violin maker, many years ago, conceived the idea of pasting inside his fiddle a label which said: "Stradivarius Model." Which was honest enough, because he had copied the form of the famous Strads. I don't know whether it would get by today's pure food—or pure fiddle—laws.

Every now and then some fiddler—or perhaps his widow—comes to my little nook with a mysterious package. Unwrapped, it proves to be—by the label—something with "Stradivarius" on it. He—or she—tells me it's worth a million bucks, though it was found in a pawnshop or left in grandpa's attic. And the visitor desires my opinion—which is worth exactly half of nothing—and my assistance in finding a millionaire buyer.

For several years I took pains to point out that the label was printed in English—and from a modern type face—and that it said "Model." And tried to explain that Mr. Stradivarius, of Cremona, if he labeled his fiddles, probably would have written—not printed—the labels in Italian. And would have been a wizard indeed if he could have provided labels in an American type face not designed until long after Mr. Stradivarius had passed to his eternal reward. But that brought me only hard looks.

So I've quit doing that. I merely say I hope the bearer has a wonder and he'd better consult a violin expert—which I am not.

So with these copies of the Ulster Gazette. First paper to print an account of George Washington's funeral. Rare! Rare, indeed! If I had accepted all of them offered me on a promise to find a wealthy purchaser they'd be stacked two feet deep—and I haven't the space to spare.

That issue of the paper became well known and reprints were made. Then, after many years, photo-engraving came into use and it was easy to reproduce those four pages and print a million.

Reason I mention this again is because of a scientific item which says researchers have agreed that only two copies of that original issue are known to be in existence. And both are in noted collections.

Lunt-Fontanne

They're called "The Lunts," because Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne have been paired so long. On the stage—and as a married couple. They're bringing "There Shall Be No Night" to the Er-langer Thursday night for a three-day engagement.

Broadway marriages seem to last longer than Hollywood marriages. I don't know why. But Alfred and Lynn have stuck together sometime now—and no gossip column has reported a split-up in the offing.

I think it is fine that the Lunts, every year, should take to "the road." It's tough, sometimes. "Sleepers jumps," one-night stands, poorly equipped theaters, sometimes bum hotels.

The Lunts—and Katherine Cornell and others—including, last year, at least—Katharine Hepburn—have helped keep the "stage drama" alive. I'm glad to say their tours, according to reports, were profitable.

A vast number of people are hungry for "live actors" on the stage instead of flickering figures on the screen. But the day is past when they'll pay three bucks and tax to see a No. 2 company stalling through a Broadway success.

The Lunts come "in person." Miss Cornell always brings her original company. Tallulah Bankhead came last season in "The Little Foxes"—with her Broadway cast. And they all did well. There were others I can't recall who also did well on the road.

There are some things the pictures have done even better than Broadway did. I can think of a number. The camera can present so many more scenes than a cramped stage, confined to three settings.

But still, I think, a great number of folk are hungry to see "flesh and blood" folk on a real stage. I hope there are enough of them to keep the stage alive—and profitable. For if it isn't profitable why play with it?

Vocalis Asks More Pay For Disabled Veterans

Charles Vocalis, commander of Greater Atlanta Post 390, VFW, said here yesterday that disabled veterans of the World War should have their government compensation increased by at least 10 per cent.

"Rising living costs and rapidly increasing taxes are penalizing America's disabled veterans whose government compensation and pensions were inadequate for decent living standards even before the national defense program imposed new burdens on the public," he declared.

Abit Nix, in an address to the young people of Druid Hills Baptist church last Sunday evening, said:

"The first line of defense for our nation and any nation is the morale of its people. I am deeply interested in the work of the churches for the young people for the reason that I believe that faith in God is the one sure and adequate solvent for all our problems.

"The men who man the ships and planes, the citizens who pay the taxes, the soldier and the civilian alike must be armored in unflinching faith in the unfailing God if we are to win the victory over the sinister forces that today threaten every sanctity of life.

Ex-President Of Panama To Speak Tonight

Ricardo Alfaro Will Discuss World Crisis at Agnes Scott.

Ricardo Alfaro, former president of Panama and expert on Pan-American relations, will speak on "Hemisphere Solidarity in Defense" at 8:30 o'clock tonight in Presser Hall on the Agnes Scott campus.

A diplomat in Panama for 35 years, Alfaro is expected to present the Latin-American and South American point of view in the present world crisis. With Cordell Hull in 1936, he drafted the treaty, ratified in 1939, providing for the defense of the Panama Canal Zone. At present he is secretary general of the American Association of International Law, of which Hull is president.

Bread Price Boost Held 'Warranted'

The 1-cent increase in the retail price of bread yesterday was adjudged "warranted" by the Atlanta Consumer Council, which recently declined to agree that a similar hike in milk prices per quart was necessary.

Declaring that bread ingredients have risen 50 per cent or more in price in recent months, Mrs. Serena Seymour Schiltz, a member of the council, said a study of the situation showed that bread manufacturers are co-operating with the Office of Price Administration to keep the price down, but that baker's costs have mounted considerably.

Mrs. Schiltz said the most economical bread, and the highest in food value, is usually home-made bread.

INSTALLMENT XXXIV.

"We certainly do, son," his father said. "And when the weather gets nice and you don't have to go to school you're going to start taking regular golf lessons. I'll make a golf prodigy out of you yet."

"What a prodigy?"

"A champ. You can take lessons at my golf school when it opens."

April said: "Your golf school?"

Hill nodded. "Hasn't anyone told you I'm going into business? I'm turning pro. I've raised some capital and I'm opening a golf club and school on the Stillier estate at Great Neck. We'll be open in a few weeks now. Just as soon as the weather is right."

"How nice!" April exclaimed. "I think that's wonderful."

Hill said seriously: "Yes, it's been keeping me pretty busy. I haven't had much time for anything else. I've been getting members lined up, and scouting around looking for pupils. It's quite a job getting the building set. I'm a hard-working man."

April's face mirrored both astonishment and pleasure. Kent went on:

"There'll be money in it, I think. I'm splitting 50-50 with my backers. They have influence, too, and I can't see how we can lose. It's to be called the Kent Hillier School of Golf. They put up the money and use my name for bait. I do the work."

April said excitedly: "Why Hill, that's the best news I've ever heard of. How grand that you're to have a business of your own. And something you love to do. Oh, I do wish you luck!"

Hill smiled crookedly: "Thanks, darling. If I'd had any brains I'd have started the thing when we first came to New York."

Suddenly April's expression changed. She said suspiciously: "Drusilla is backing you, I suppose?"

Hill looked annoyed, then he smiled uncertainly: "No. Drusilla doesn't even know about it. It's a doctor who doesn't want his name used."

Hill couldn't tell April that it was Dr. Malcolm because it would entail a lot of explaining which he wasn't in a position to do. If he did, April would find out that he was paying her bills at the hospital.

April laughed apologetically: "Oh, forgive me, Hill. I shouldn't have said that. I guess it was the green-eyed monster rearing its ugly head. Of course I might have known better than that. You do forgive me?"

Hill nodded: "I forgive you. Your jealousy flatters my ego. I rather like it."

April asked them: "If you haven't told Drusilla about the golf school I presume you're not married yet?"

Kenny had climbed down and was looking out the window at the traffic below. He did not hear his mother's question. Hill's jaw hardened.

"No," he said shortly. "I'm not married."

"We won't talk about it," April said soothingly. "I just wondered."

A little later April's day nurse came to the door. "I'm sorry," she smiled, "but I'm afraid we'll have to send the family home. We can't let Miss Lind get too tired."

Kenny turned from the window. "Miss Lind is my aunt Cherry," he said. "And she isn't here. My Mommy's name is Mrs. Hillier. I guess you made a mistake."

The nurse smiled: "Oh, pardon me. I guess I did. Well, Mrs. Hillier, it's time for an alcohol rub and a bath."

Hill started to help Kenny with his zipper jacket, but he said resentfully: "I'm no sissy. Daddy. Nobody has to dress me. I guess you forget I'm a big boy."

Hill grinned: "Yes, I guess I do, son. You'll soon be as big as I am."

Kenny offered innocently:

"Aunt Cherry is afraid I'm going to look like you, Daddy. And you know I don't think she likes you very much. She said, 'For heaven's sake, Hyacinthe, the little goon looks more like that 'big dopey ever' day.' A big dope isn't very nice, is it, Mommy?"

April's face colored. The nurse turned and busied herself at a table. Hill grinned uncertainly. April held Kenny close, trying not to show how hard it was to part from him after such a little while. She whispered close in his ear:

"Take very good care of Daddy, darling. That's your secret. And don't you pay any attention to what Aunt Cherry says about Daddy. He's our best friend, isn't he?"

Kenny nodded swiftly. Then he whispered: "Aunt Cherry is a very bad girl. Marfy, the girl next door, said so."

Curt was waiting to see April when she awakened from her nap. Miss Sayres, the day nurse, combed her hair and bathed her face and put a frilly bed jacket on her before he came in. Then she went out and left them alone.

"Hello, darling," Curt bent and kissed April lightly on the lips. "You're looking very beautiful today."

He sat down and took April's hand. She held it tightly.

"I'm feeling better every day. I'll be out of here soon, won't I, dear? Very soon?"

"Very soon," Curt nodded. "And I want you to do something very special for me, darling."

"What is it? You know I'd do anything for you, Curt. You're so good to me."

Curt leaned closer. "Anything, my beloved?"

"Well," April smiled, "almost anything? What is it, Curt?"

"Promises me," he put his lips to her cheek, "you'll marry me here at the hospital, and let me take you to Pennyhaven. I want to know you're there where I can take care of you. Will you, darling?"

April drew away, her heart sinking. "Oh, no," she said quickly. "I can't do that, Curt. Not until I'm up and walking about. I wouldn't feel right about it. You must wait until I'm well."

Curt closed his eyes, holding her close.

"Oh, but my sweet, you mustn't feel that way. If you knew how much I wanted to take you home to Pennyhaven to take care of you, you'd marry me without hesitating. I'm being selfish, dear, I know. But I just want you near me. That's all I ask."

April said with a sudden fear: "You—you're afraid I'll never walk again. That—that's why you're afraid to wait."

Curt denied quickly. "No, no! You mustn't talk such nonsense. It's just that Pennyhaven is so much better equipped with all the things you need, darling. You need to be in a country place, not an apartment. That's the reason."

April shook her head swiftly: "No, Curt. I couldn't marry you until I'm able to walk. It wouldn't be fair to you."

"Gay is going to be very much disappointed," Curt argued. "We've talked it over, and she feels the same way as I do about it. She says she would want to go back to Douglaston for awhile if you didn't come to us. She'd be worried about you."

"Oh, but she mustn't," April said. "It wouldn't be right for her to leave Penny. Hyacinthe and Cherry can take care of me. If they can't I can have a nurse for awhile. Why the way you talk, Curt, you'd think I planned to be an invalid for the rest of my life."

Curt winced, kissing her tenderly on the top of the head. "You'd better think it over and decide I'm right, dear. Because I'm not going to be easy to convince that I'm not right. Don't make up your mind too definitely."

Baering Down on the News

By Arthur "Bugs" Boer.

Here's a question I want to ask the quiz kids. "Why should a lawyer have the right to ask you to answer yes or no when he can't do it himself?"

The reason I bring up that subject is because an attorney in a senatorial investigation was requested to eliminate the quibbling and either nod or grunt.

Well, he was stumped like a farm in the woods. He could no more answer yes or no in one word than little Goldilocks could refrain from eating the porridge.

He was all preamble and trills like an overture to an aria. And when he got through he hadn't answered yes or no. He had beat around the bush like a berry-picker.

He had taken those two words and run between them like they were wagon shafts.

Your Horoscope for Today

By ALICE DENTON JENNINGS, (NOTED ATLANTA CHIROLOGIST).

What today means to you if you were born between:

March 21st and April 19th (ARIES)—Do not try to overdo your strength today. Watch your health. Many of the difficulties encountered today may be caused through forgetfulness, nervousness and tension. An excellent day to stick to routine.

April 20th and May 20th (TAURUS)—The influences prevailing today do not favor entering into anything that is indefinite, or that is not thoroughly understood, for too much action or too quick action on your part may easily bring losses. A good day to be cautious.

May 21st and June 20th (GEMINI)—Before 1:31 p. m. use care and economy in any financial undertaking. Between 1:31 p. m. and 6:54 p. m. you will accomplish more by working alone, as others do not get the proper perspective of your ideas. After 6:54 p. m. and continuing through the evening favors written matters, having consultations, signing papers.

June 21st and July 22nd (CANCER)—The influence prevailing previous to 1:37 p. m. are the most favorable of the day, for affairs will go to right with least effort. Financial gains, literary efforts, preferences of some sort accompany these influences. The remainder of the day and evening do not especially favor new beginnings.

July 23rd and August 22nd (LEO)—More success will be attained today by sticking to routine. Be deliberate in what you do and do not undertake affairs impulsively. The best aspects of the day operate previous to 1 p. m.

August 23rd and September 22nd (VIRGO)—The period previous to 6:10 p. m. does not especially favor new plans or projects. The most favorable influences of the day culminate between 6:10 p. m. and 11:44 p. m. making this a favorable period for matters pertaining to social life.

September 23rd and October 22nd (LIBRA)—Previous to 3:45 p. m. is the better portion of the day when you should make every effort to get conditions set in motion for progress. Between 3:45 p. m. and 8:50 p. m. care should be used to hold your peace and do not take on new obligations. After 8:50 p. m. favors meetings and conferences.

October 23rd and November 21st (SCORPIO)—After 12:47 p. m. favors practical work and dealings with people of a conservative nature, but does not favor making sudden changes. The period suggests sticking to routine.

November 22nd and December 21st (SAGITTARIUS)—It will be wise to keep an eye on money matters today, for the tendency is towards extravagance and miscalculation. The evening hours after 8 p. m. suggest unusual caution to avoid sharp and severe disappointments resulting from unexpected situations.

December 22nd and January 19th (CAPRICORN)—Domestic affairs, dealings with women, business for the adornment of women, should proceed harmoniously during the entire day. Previous to 6:33 p. m. avoid over-confidence, rashness in action and talk. After 7:04 p. m. favors sports and romantic interests.

January 20th and February 18th (AQUARIUS)—An excellent day for achievement, for using your originality and personality to new and forceful ways. Previous to 2:32 p. m. favors dealings with those in the public eye. After this time favors working in old, established affairs, dealing with the opposite sex.

February 19th and March 20th (PISCES)—An excellent day to go slow in undertaking new ventures. Be cautious in travel and pay special attention to health. The best aspects of the day operate previous to 4:01 p. m.

"M" For Music.
Meredith Willson was given his name by his big sister, Dixie, because "the name Meredith has music in it." The unusual coincidence came to light this week when the maestro-composed unearthed a "baby book" kept by his parents in his infancy. The naming episode was dated May 28, 1902, 10 days after he was born!

Eddie Dowling is mighty glad he carries a spare pair of reading glasses. The "We, the People" host had to lend his extra "specs" to a program guest when the latter forgot his, last Tuesday night.

Jean Hersholt has an anniversary, beginning his fifth consecutive year as "Dr. Christian," with a rollicking piece called "Grandma Streamlined." The National Safety Council aids in the presentation of Edward G. Robinson's "Big Town" drama, "40,000 Lives," which warns of the results of reckless driving. School children who heard last year's Safety Council drama belatedly because many missed its first "Big Town" presentation, are urged to listen this time. "Mr. Meek" becomes involved in a football complication.

Glamorous Marlene

Visits Banjo Eyes at 9

Lovely Marlene Dietrich will trade glamour for gags as Eddie Cantor's guest star on the Time to Smile program over the NBC-Red network and WSB tonight at 9 p. m.

In addition to sharing comedy honors with the banjo-eyed star of the show and his assistants in laughs, Bert "The Mad Russian" Gordon and Harry von Zell, Miss Dietrich will vie with Dinah Shore for vocal laurels.

Music for the program will be conducted by Edgar "Cookie" Fairchild.

Mystery Program Bans

"Inner Sanctum Mystery" program must have started a new trend when it did away with studio audiences. At any rate, latest program to follow suit is the "Captain Flag and Sergeant Quilt" programs. Reason "Inner Sanctum" abolished attendees is that the Sunday NBC thrillers not only caused some folk to go into semi-hysterics but also their actions proved disconcerting to the actors.

True Boardman, contract writer for the "Silver Theater" series, has been elected president of the Los Angeles local of the American Federation of Radio Artists.

NEW YORK, Nov. 4. — (AP) — Henry Mayer, counsel for the Federation of Long Lines Telephone Workers (Independent), announced tonight that a conference had been arranged for Friday morning at which an effort would be made to explore the union's differences with the American Telephone & Telegraph Company. The union has voted a strike would affect communications in 42 states unless their dispute is certified to the National Defense Mediation Board by November 14. Mayer said Friday's meeting would be attended by Aaron Horvitz, United States Conciliation Service commissioner, and other Washington officials. The union's negotiating committee, headed by John J. Moran, of Pittsburgh, union president, and representatives of the A. T. & T. management will sit in, Mayer said. Mayer said that out of 7,565 votes cast by union members, 5,548 favored the strike.

Flanders Replica To Be Exhibited

A huge replica of Flanders field in France, with its rows of crosses marking the graves of thousands of American soldiers, will be exhibited at 3 o'clock this afternoon at the corner of Metropolitan and Flat Shoals avenues by the East Point Post of the American Legion as a prelude to Armistice Day observance Tuesday. The program includes a speech by Major Gilbert Decker, of the Salvation Army, the playing of "My Buddy" and "Taps" by Trumpeeters Frances and Florina Stewart, and a memorial volley by a firing squad from Atlanta Post No. 1.

Gallup on Neutrality: Sentiment to Change Act Rises

By GEORGE GALLUP.
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.
Copyright, 1941.

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 4.—Public sentiment in favor of changing the neutrality act increased sharply during the final week of October. The shift in opinion is reflected in the results of the latest Institute poll of the nation on the neutrality act issue during the period October 22 to November 1—a period in which the neutrality act was vigorously debated in congress and in which President Roosevelt addressed the nation to proclaim that "shooting has started."

The trend of sentiment follows: "Should the neutrality act be changed to permit American merchant ships to be armed?"

	Yes	No	Un-decided
Mid-October	72%	21%	7%
Today	81	14	5

"Should the neutrality act be changed to permit American merchant ships to carry war materials to Britain?"

	Yes	No	Un-decided
April	30%	61%	9%
Sept.	46	40	14
Early Oct.	46	40	14
Mid-Oct.	54	37	9
Today	61	31	8

The new poll results indicate that there has been a marked trend among the rank and file of Republican voters in the direction of changing the act. This is illustrated in the following vote on revising the act to let ships go to Britain:

	Yes	No	Un-decided
Mid-Oct.	49%	44%	7%
Today	59	34	7

Committee elicited this comment from Gale Wyman, a Deadwood, S. D., attorney and the son of Federal District Judge A. Lee Wyman, of South Dakota, at committee hearings on the fitness of Langer to hold a seat in the senate. Wyman testified that he was paid by the late Chet Leedom, a former United States marshal for South Dakota, whom he described as a "very close" friend of his father, and James Mulloy, a former Langer political lieutenant. Langer was twice tried before Judge Wyman in the fall of 1935 on a charge of conspiracy to obstruct the orderly operation of an act of congress and was acquitted at the second trial. Mulloy told the committee yesterday that Langer paid out through him a total of $1,700 or $1,800 in an effort to buy influence with Judge Wyman, $525 going to young Wyman and the balance to Leedom. Wyman asserted he told Leedom and Mulloy that his father was "not the kind of a man" who could be influenced but agreed to accept $500 from them for going to Sioux Falls to see him and deliver two messages. Leedom and Mulloy wanted him to ask the judge, Wyman said, whether they could obtain a list of jurors in advance of the trial. They also asked him to tell the judge not to attend a banquet which they said was designed to bring "anti-Langer influence" to bear on the judge. "I went over and delivered the messages they wanted delivered," he told the committee, adding that the expenses of his trip amounted to about $25. Good used bikes are in demand. Son of Judge Tells of Taking Langer Money

Cash Was Paid To Defray 'Expenses' of Short Trip.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4. — (AP) — The 39-year-old son of a federal judge who presided at three trials of Senator Langer, Republican, North Dakota, in 1935 today told of accepting $525 from associates of Langer in advance of the trials. He characterized his action as a "foolhardy and very, very expensive and embarrassing situation."

Bradshaw Memorial Gate To Be Dedicated Tomorrow

By SALLY FORTH

... THE MEMORY of beloved Mrs. W. F. Bradshaw, of Athens, has been forever perpetuated in the handsome ornamental iron gate which has been erected in the Founders' Memorial Garden at the University of Georgia.

Appropriate presentation services will be held in the garden at 10:30 o'clock tomorrow morning by the members of the Junior Ladies' Garden Club of Athens, donors of the gate. Known as the Rosea White Bradshaw Memorial Gate, it has been given in recognition of the outstanding work done by Mrs. Bradshaw as first chairman of the Founders' Memorial Garden project in 1938.

Mrs. James White, the former Elizabeth Spalding, of Atlanta, is president of the junior club, which is sponsored by and functions as a part of the Ladies' Garden Club. The latter club was organized 50 years ago in Athens, the first garden club to be founded in America.

The Founders' Memorial Garden commemorates the organization of this first club and is the project of the Garden Club of Georgia, with the assistance of the University of Georgia. The preliminary plan for the garden was executed by the landscape architecture department of the university, under the direction of Professor Hubert B. Owens.

Elizabeth White will open the exercises tomorrow, and Mrs. Thomas Tillman, co-chairman of the memorial committee, will introduce the speakers. The invocation, to be given by Dr. E. L. Hill, will be followed by the presentation of the gate by Miss Nina Scudder, who also is a co-chairman of the memorial committee. The gift will be accepted by Dr. Harmon Caldwell, president of the university, and Professor Owens. The exercises will close with the benediction to be given by Rev. David Cady Wright.

A number of Atlantans, who cherish the memory of their friendships with Mrs. Bradshaw and who are keenly interested in the project, plan to motor to Athens for the service. In fact, garden club members from over the state are expected to be in attendance to pay homage to their former associate, whose life was dedicated to usefulness, generosity, and the interests of garden club accomplishments throughout the state.

... WHEN Atlanta flower lovers throng the ballroom of the Piedmont Driving Club today for the chrysanthemum show, they will have a surprise in store for them when they witness an "eleventh-hour entry." Last week Mrs. Laurie D. Webster, the capable head of the Flower Show Association; Mrs. Jesse Draper, well-known flower show judge, and Mrs. Albert E. Thornton, also a leading figure in garden club work—all three members of the Peachtree Garden Club—motored to Rome, where they obtained a quantity of jars from the Georgia Pottery Company. Upon their return, the trio decided to use the jars as a special feature for today's show.

With their committee, including Mrs. Andrew Calhoun, Mrs. Frank Adair, Mrs. Wallace Wright and Miss Nellie Hightower, they have arranged dried material in the jars most effectively. And the grand part about it is that the arrangements will retain their present condition throughout the winter season, thereby making excellent Christmas presents.

... IT WAS NOT until after Josephine McDougall had chosen her debut date, NOVEMBER 3, that she learned of the significance of that date to her parents, Dr. and Mrs. Calhoun McDougall. Miss Crowell and Mr. Magill Wed at Afternoon Ceremony

The First Presbyterian church formed the setting yesterday afternoon at 5:30 o'clock for the marriage of Miss Jeanne Crowell, beautiful young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Crowell, and John Franklin Magill, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lafayette Johnston Magill.

Dr. William V. Gardner read the marriage service in the presence of a fashionable gathering of Atlantans and guests from a distance. Dr. Charles A. Sheldon, organist, presented a musical program.

Forming a background for the bride, which was adorned with white chrysanthemums, were palms before which were placed branched candelabra centered with white chrysanthemums. Marking the family pews were white satin ribbon bows.

Guests were escorted to their places by Paul Johnson Jr., of Marietta; William N. Dulancy, of Birmingham, Ala.; Jack Sharp, of Bernal, Tom Roberts, of Fairburn, and C. G. Aycock Jr.

Miss Joanna Crowell, who was her sister's maid of honor, wore Chinese blue velvet fashioned with a sweetheart neckline and a soft bouquet of yellow roses and wore a Chinese blue velvet Juliette cap.

The bridesmaids, Miss Margaret Johnson, of Navan and Atlanta; Miss Ruth Lyons and Mrs. Robert K. Shepard, wore thistle purple velvet gowns styled like the maid of honor's and they carried similar bouquets. Thistle velvet Juliette caps accented their costumes.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was met at the altar by the groom and his best man, Jack Jetton. Ivory faille styled with a fitted bodice, which featured a sweetheart neckline and long sleeves, fashioned the bride's beautiful gown. The dress, which was worn by Mrs. C. G. Aycock Jr. at her wedding, was made with a fan-shaped train. A veil of illusion tulle, which belongs to Mrs. Earle Cox Jr., was posed over the exquisite imported real lace veil, which was loaned the bride by Mrs. John I. Lowry.

Accented the bride's handsome robes was a pearl and diamond necklace, a gift of her mother. She carried a cascade bouquet of Eucharist lilies and gardenias centered with white orchids and posed against English ivy.

Mr. and Mrs. Crowell entertained at a reception at the Biltmore hotel following the ceremony for members of the bridal party and the immediate families.

Mrs. Crowell received her guests wearing a blue crepe model embellished with sequins and accented by a matching hat trimmed with black French tip feathers. A cluster of purple orchids adorned her shoulder. Mrs. Magill chose for her son's wedding champagne crepe embroidered in gold and worn with a matching hat adorned with vari-colored French tips. Her flowers were lavender orchids.

White satin overlaid the bride's table, which was garlanded with fern and centered with a tiered cake. Flanking the cake were white bowls filled with white roses, snapdragons and gladioli.

Mr. Magill and his bride departed for a wedding trip along the gulf coast to New Orleans. Mrs. Magill was attired in a crushed grape woolen suit worn with a purple and lime plaid topcoat. An iridescent gray velvet hat and other accessories of crushed grape offset her outfit. A cluster of white purple-throated orchids graced her left shoulder. At the conclusion of their wedding journey the couple will reside at 2855 Peachtree road.

Cossack hat of Persian lamb which she wore over her long, flowing pageboy bob in "Idiot's Delight."

Her gowns in "There Shall Be No Night" also started something in the fashion world, for they introduced the pinafore apron which has been so popular and still continues in high favor.

Franchot Tone Rebukes Landlady, Hedy Lamarr, For Leaks in the Roof

By Louella O. Parsons.

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 4.—(INS) Straight from New York comes the news that David Selznick is negotiating with the famed Shakespearean actor, Maurice Evans, for the role of Father Francis in "The Keys of the Kingdom." David, who has his heart and soul in casting this picture perfectly won't be satisfied until he has just the right actor. Those of us who lived through the Scarlett O'Hara quest know how exacting he can be. Evans, like Katherine Cornell, is one of the few great stage actors who has steadfastly refused all film offers up to now. Again like Katherine he says he does not look down on the movies—but he has never found a role he thought would fit him. But the gentle little Catholic priest is as far removed from the ordinary screen role as A from Z. I agree with David that it would enhance the power of the picture if the role of the priest is played by an actor unknown to film audiences.

Is George Sanders married or isn't he? A little bird says he isn't but other little birds have said over a period of months that he is—so what are you going to believe? The fans have asked me but George isn't admitting anything. I had no idea he was so popular until the "Saint" controversy came up. I seem every girl in the country sees George and I will accept no one else in this series. 20th Century-Fox has just bought a novel, "The Impostor" by Kurt Steiner—a romance of a stage story. Even though George can play the meanest villains, we always have a sneaking liking for him. We put his name high on the list of actors who in heavy roles give the heroes a run for their money.

When I was on the M-G-M lot a few days ago, Billy Grady nabbed me and insisted I look at some tests of Ann Ayars, who took Lorraine Day's place in the "Kidnare."

Scrap Bag Produces A Hooked Rug

Making your own heirloom hooked rug—it's fun and it's simple. From cast-off clothing or blankets you can make rugs as lovely as the cherished old New England treasures. The more colors the merrier—combine rose, beige, green, lavender, many more! Pretty patterns for hooking can be drawn with a ruler or by tracing around saucers or small glasses.

For a rug start with a piece of burlap slightly larger than you want the finished rug to be. Rule the surface into squares, then in each alternate square draw the stylized flower pattern. It's just three overlapping circles with a fourth in the center and a tiny one in the middle of that. The other squares are ruled into stripes.

To prepare rug for hooking, stitch carpet binding around the outlines of the rug and tack burlap to a simple oblong wooden frame. You can make your own by fastening together four pieces of wood.

Now cut your material in strips about 1-2 inch wide, or narrower for thicker fabrics, and you're ready.

Grasp your hook in your right hand, hold the strip to be hooked underneath the burlap with your left hand. Push hook through burlap with your right hand and pull up strip until you have a loop about 1-4 inch above the surface. Skip a few threads and pull up another loop, and so on. Surprising how fast your rug will grow!

And perhaps you know the very spot for an old-fashioned braided rag rug? These are easy to make, too.

This Home-Mixed Cough Relief Is Hard To Beat

Very Easy To Make. No Cooking. Saves Big Money. No matter what you've been using for coughs due to colds, you'll be the first to admit that this surprising relief, mixed in your own kitchen, can't be surpassed, for real results. Make a syrup by stirring 2 cups of granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. No cooking is needed—a child could do it.

Then put 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex (obtained from any drugstore) in a pint bottle and add your syrup. This gives you a full pint of really amazing cough relief—about four times as much for your money. Tastes fine—children love it—and it never spoils.

You can feel this home mixture taking right hold of a cough. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes and helps clear the air passages. Eases soreness and difficult breathing, and lets you sleep. Once tried, you'll never be without it.

Pinex is a special compound of proven ingredients, in concentrated form, a most reliable soothing agent for throat and bronchial membranes. Just try it, and if not satisfied, your money will be refunded.

Dry skin is generally the greatest obstacle to be overcome in achieving a smooth textured skin, such as that of Irene Dunne of Universal Pictures. Below is mentioned a cream to help in combating skin dryness.

Ward Off Winter Wrinkles With a Cream Rich in Oils

By Winifred Ware.

Unfortunately most American women have dry skins, and the drier the skin the easier and quicker it tends to wrinkle and line. What they need is a good rich emollient cream to supply the skin with lubricating oil that helps keep the surface of the skin so youthfully soft looking.

There is, of course, a particular cream which I have in mind for this purpose. It is an appealing pink cream which you'll enjoy using because of its appearance and delicate fragrance. However its main recommendation is the richness of the oils it contains. When the cream is applied regularly these oils help keep the skin's surface soft, smooth and lovely. By literally plying your skin each night with plenty of this cream you can do much toward giving the surface that satiny, young sheen, that smooth look which is the basis of a perfect complexion.

The top layer of skin is softened and smoothed by this cream when used regularly and allowed to stay on for a reasonable length of time. If you don't like to go to bed with cream on your face, let it stay on for as long as possible before going to bed. Then pat off all the excess with tissues, still leaving a base of rich cream emollients.

Don't use a lot of the cream one night, and then neglect your routine for several. It is the regular application which does the good. Before the cold of winter and the drying effect of steam heat get too much of a head start try using this cream as a protection.

I'll be glad to tell you where you can get it (and by the way, it's specially priced for a few weeks) if you call me at Walnut 6565, or write in care of The Constitution, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Laugh Off Attentions of Married Man

By Dixie George.

I am 15 and am considered very attractive. What can I do? UNHAPPY.

Do not worry too much about the boys; you are still rather young, and you will have plenty of time to go with them later. Do not let your feelings get the best of you. Do not like you make you look like a sour puss. Pretend to be having a gay time. Play up your best points. If you can sing, dance or play the piano, concentrate upon this talent. Have you thought of a hobby, such as fortune telling? You can work this up to such a point that you will have the boys as well as the girls crowding around you all the time. When you go out, never let it occur to you that you will not have a good time and that the boys will not be attracted to you. Go out with the idea that you will be the belle of the ball.

Pattern 4920. She'll look like a little angel in this adorable frock designed by Lillian Mae. Both versions of Pattern 4920 use the heart motif—one as an applique on the bodice, the other as twin pockets on the skirt. The skirt is paneled back and front for youthful flare, the bodice dips in front and buttons down the back like a fencing jacket, an effect carried out by the use of contrasted fabrics—one for the skirt, another for the bodice, collar and sleeve bands, a third for the applique heart. The other frock is made of all of one fabric with ric-rac touches and a sweet-neckline. Make both with the Sewing Instructor's aid!

Pattern 4920 is available in children's sizes, 2, 4, 6, 8 and 10. Size 6 dress with contrast, takes 1-8 yards 35-inch fabric and 5-8 yard contrast; dress with ric-rac, takes ric-rac.

Sea Food Takes a Special Sauce

By Sally Saver.

Not so long ago seafoods were luxuries to be enjoyed only at the coast, but now we are far more fortunate. Due to expert methods of canning, freezing and quick delivery, even far inland cities may have seafood dishes at any time.

The secret of the tasty seafood dishes which are prepared by famous chefs often lies in the sauces. One ingredient which furnishes a truly aristocratic flavor and which blends particularly well with the seafood flavor is a mellow wine.

Hot seafood dishes are particularly well suited to buffet service or cool autumn evenings. Below is a recipe for one which combines the deliciousness of shrimps, crabmeat and mushrooms with sherry-wine-flavored cream sauce. It makes the main dish of a party buffet or Sunday night supper and needs only a crisp, fresh salad and crackers or toast points to make a satisfying and delicious main course.

Seafood Scallop.

2 cups shrimps (fresh cooked or canned)
2 cups flaked, cooked crabmeat
1 pound mushrooms
1-2 green pepper (diced)
1-4 cup butter
2 cups medium white sauce
1-2 cup sherry wine
1-4 cup pimiento cut in strips

Remove black line across back of each shrimp. Saute mushrooms and green pepper in the butter for four minutes. Add shrimp and crabmeat and the white sauce to which the wine and pimiento have been added. Pour into casserole, top with bread crumbs and bake in a hot oven (425 degrees) for about 10 minutes. Serve on toast. Serves 6.

Sally Saver will be glad to help you with menu planning or recipe problems. Just call her at Walnut 6565 or write in care of The Constitution.

Shrimp and crabmeat blend tastily with a mellow sherry sauce.

Masks For Those With Colds Should Be a Social Must

By Dr. William Brady.

Mumps, chickenpox, measles, scarlet fever, diphtheria, whooping cough, tuberculosis, cerebrospinal meningitis, influenza, simple coryza (head cold to you, ignoramus), simple sore throat, lobar pneumonia, smallpox and infantile paralysis are the most common respiratory infections which presumably intelligent people spread indiscriminately under the cover of a "cold." Encouraged by the public health authorities of the land—that the illness or indisposition is "merely a cold." Every one of these diseases may and usually does purport to be a "cold" at first, if you are simple enough to accept such false diagnosis or vicious enough to infect people who come in contact with you under the assurance that it is nothing serious.

Every one of these respiratory infections is most likely to spread from person to person in the earliest stage of the indisposition, especially before the victim gives up and calls for medical attention. Therefore there is but one safe course for people who want to avoid such illness—they must keep out of range, spray range, of the (unprintable epithet) who insists on approaching within effective range when he or she has an alleged "cold."

There ought to be a law and there will be at least a moral law some day requiring every person who has an alleged "cold" to wear a suitable mask whenever he or she approaches within effective spray range of other people. In perhaps one case out of 20 this would impose a burden on the victim—for the alleged "cold" is a noncommunicable condition in about 5 per cent of cases—a manifestation of allergy or of nasal polyp or some noninfectious trouble. But the wearing of a suitable mask in the other 19 cases would prevent a great deal of serious and fatal illness which the present sanitary regulations sadly fail to prevent.

It is well to remember that according to surveys made in many different sections by the United States Public Health Service, the respiratory infections cause three-fourths of the illness attended by physicians.

What is this spray range we speak of? It is the distance from the nose or mouth that moisture droplets may carry when the individual coughs, sneezes, laughs or talks. Cough or sneeze spray carries 10 to 12 feet. The spray—mostly invisibly fine—given off during ordinary quiet conversation carries two or three feet, not over five feet. Even the invisibly fine droplets contain the germs or virus of the disease. If such droplets land on your mouth or lips, or if you happen to inhale them directly, you're peppered, that's all. I doubt that there is any serious danger that the droplets which

MY DAY Some Ideas On Milk Prices

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

WASHINGTON, Monday.—There were a number of guests for luncheon yesterday. After it, Mrs. Helm, Miss Thompson and I started for New York City. Before we went over to the broadcasting station, several young men came to see me.

Mrs. Morgenthau joined us at dinner at the New York house. She and I flew down to Washington, while Mrs. Helm and Miss Thompson drove back to Hyde Park.

A staff meeting this morning, press conference and other appointments are keeping me busy until I leave again at 3 o'clock by plane for New York City. I shall drive straight to Hyde Park, so as to be there for dinner tonight. In the meantime, Princess Juliana has friends in Millbrook, N. Y., so today they have spent most of the time over there.

I had some quite appalling news on the rise in the cost of living last week. The average housewife must now spend 14 per cent more for the food she will need for the family dinner than she did a year ago. In some cities the increase in food costs is even greater, running to over 19 per cent. If you were preparing a meal of ham and eggs, potatoes, white bread, butter, coffee and milk, the following prices show you what you would pay this year in comparison with last year:

	1940	1941	Increase Pct.
Ham (Lb.)	25.4 cents	34.4 cents	35
Eggs (Doz.)	37.2	46.9	26
White bread (Lb.)	8.1	8.5	5
Butter (Lb.)	34.3	43.5	27
Potatoes (15 Lbs.)	28.8	32.8	14
Coffee (Lb.)	12.8	25.7	100
Milk (Qt.)	20.3	23.9	18

In other staple products, the prices have gone up very considerably also.

For instance, here is a table which may interest you:

	Sept., 1940	Sept., 1941	Increase Pct.
Sugar (10 Lbs.)	51.0	60.0	18
Flour (10 Lbs.)	40.1	47.5	18
Lard (Lb.)	9.3	14.6	57
Evap. milk (14 1/2-Oz. can)	7.0	8.4	20
Cheese (Lb.)	25.7	32.7	27
Onions (Lb.)	3.6	4.2	17
Salmon, red (16-Oz. can)	25.9	33.7	30
Corn (No. 2 can)	10.5	11.8	12

The greater part of these increases occurred since last February, and in October of this year prices were still rising. Some of these prices reflect, undoubtedly, have increased, particularly of the increase reflects itself in the farmer's pocket. I am wondering, however, if, in the case of milk, we will not have to resort to less handling, in order to keep the price on a level where children in cities can have enough.

Take Your Time in Buying Shoes

By Ida Jean Kain.

The shoes you are planning to buy for half an hour. If they are large enough, that will allow your feet to spread normally.

Mr. Landow pointedly reminds women that shoes can be orthopedically correct and still be dressy provided the last is adapted to the particular shoe. While you are shopping, thrust your foot behind you, bend your knees slightly and turn your feet inward, knees outward. The heels should be turned to the inner side of the line. Finally, come down on the heels, and swing the foot over until it is straight. Relax and repeat 10 times.

Officials Say Gopher Score Was Foolproof

Referee Getchel Certain of Legality of 41-Yard Run.

MINNEAPOLIS, Nov. 4.—(P)—John S. Getchel, referee of Saturday's game which Minnesota won from Northwestern, 8 to 7, with a disputed sleeper play that sprung Bud Higgins loose for 41 yards and a touchdown, declared emphatically today:

"There never was any doubt in the minds of the four officials that the play was legal."

"Before the game Bernie Bierman explained to us the possibility of such a play and described it for us to assure us that it was within the rules."

"Before the play came up, the Minnesota quarterback told one of the officials that we should be prepared for a trick play. I observed that the Gophers were in spread line formation and everything was within the rules."

In Chicago Monday, Coach Lynn Waldorf, Northwestern coach, said Chicago observers in the press box thought the play was illegal because, he quoted them as saying, the Minnesota backfield was in motion.

WAIT 'TIL NEXT YEAR.

Instead of talking about his Penn State varsity, which licked N. Y. U., 42-0, Bob Higgins does his raving about a couple of freshman backs, Dave and Harry Alston. Dave, he says, is about the greatest kicker and passer he's ever seen.

All in The Game

BY JACK TROY

Times Change Times have changed in football. Radically. Tulane and Alabama Saturday clash at New Orleans in the day's big game in Dixie.

Between them Alabama and Tulane have three defeats. Tulane has been beaten by Rice and Ole Miss. Alabama bowed to Mississippi State.

Time was—and not so long ago—when two teams meeting, at the end of the season, would be playing another ball game if one had lost one and the other two.

But here is a case, on the second Saturday of November, of it happening and the clubs getting top billing in all Dixie. O, Tempore! O, Mores!

And, by the way—cast one vote for me for that Green Wave of Tulane.

This may be the week they're supposed to be "down," but don't believe in it too strongly. There is no team in this country with much more power than Tulane, when the team is operating as it was against Vanderbilt.

Getting back to the idea of teams with three defeats between them getting the headlines for this weekend, it's a highly encouraging sign.

It simply means that the old emphasis on winning is rapidly decreasing. Closer competition, win or lose, makes for greater spectator attractions.

Which, after all, is the main thing.

Purples Slate Tentative Tilt With Ky. Team

Hopkinsville Wins 20 Straight; Smithies Postpone Anderson Test.

By CHARLIE ROBERTS.

The OPM "Blackout" of prep football games here has caused so much consternation among school officials several schedule changes come to light daily, but the most interesting one has nothing to do with the lighting situation. Boys' High's great team, sporting a 19-game winning streak, has tentatively slated a game here Friday, November 28, with Hopkinsville (Ky.) High, winner of their last 20 straight and unbeaten since 1939.

The game, which likely will be played on the eve of the Georgia-Georgia Tech tilt in Atlanta, is not yet a certainty but the deal is expected to be consummated in the next few days.

"Terrific Tommy" Gray, the Hopkinsville High school half-back, has scored 163 points so far this season and has three more games remaining to equal or better the state interscholastic record of 189 points for one season, set last year by Jesse Tunstall, of Paducah.

TECH HIGH SHIFT. While that one was brewing Tech High and Anderson (S. C.) High officials put their heads together and decided to play their game on November 26, the day before Thanksgiving, instead of next Friday when it was originally scheduled for Ponce de Leon Park at night.

With all high school coaches and players in and around Atlanta hoping for heavy showers so the OPM officials will call off the blackouts after this week, they nevertheless turned their attentions to rescheduling their tilts in the afternoon.

The Boys' High and Tech High B teams will clash at Ponce de Leon Park tomorrow afternoon at 3:15 o'clock in one of the week's features.

ALWAYS THRILLER.

The annual preview to the Smithies-Purple varsity tilt always produces thrills aplenty. Last year the Tech High Buzzers came out triumphant, 12 to 7, after Milton Miller, now a regular Purple guard, ran 96 yards with an intercepted pass to win for the Purple Bees the year before. Meanwhile the varsity eleven are putting in long hours of rough work in preparation for their big game Friday or Saturday week.

Hapeville and Fulton High will meet Thursday afternoon this week on the Russell field. All other local games are slated for Friday afternoon. Commercial will battle North Fulton then at North Fulton; Richardson goes out to West Fulton for a joust, and Russell will seek to repel an invading Gainesville High outfit.

Marist tackles Jordan in Columbus Friday and Decatur goes to Griffin for a tough one, but G. M. A. will wait until Saturday to take on the Savannah High Geechie in Savannah.

Chapman Debates Diamond Future

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Nov. 4.—(P)—Outfielder Ben Chapman, released unconditionally by the Chicago White Sox yesterday, said today he might remain in the game as a manager, but doubted every seriously that I will play any more in the majors or in Class AA baseball.

"It was not a surprise," he said of his release, "because I had been expecting it, since I had such a bad year—batted only .240." The native of Birmingham, Ala., said he might remain here devoting his full time to a bowling center, of which he is a co-owner.

Druid Hills Beats Riverside Harriers

The Druid Hills High school cross-country team defeated Riverside Military Academy harriers by the score of 27 to 28 at Druid Hills yesterday afternoon.

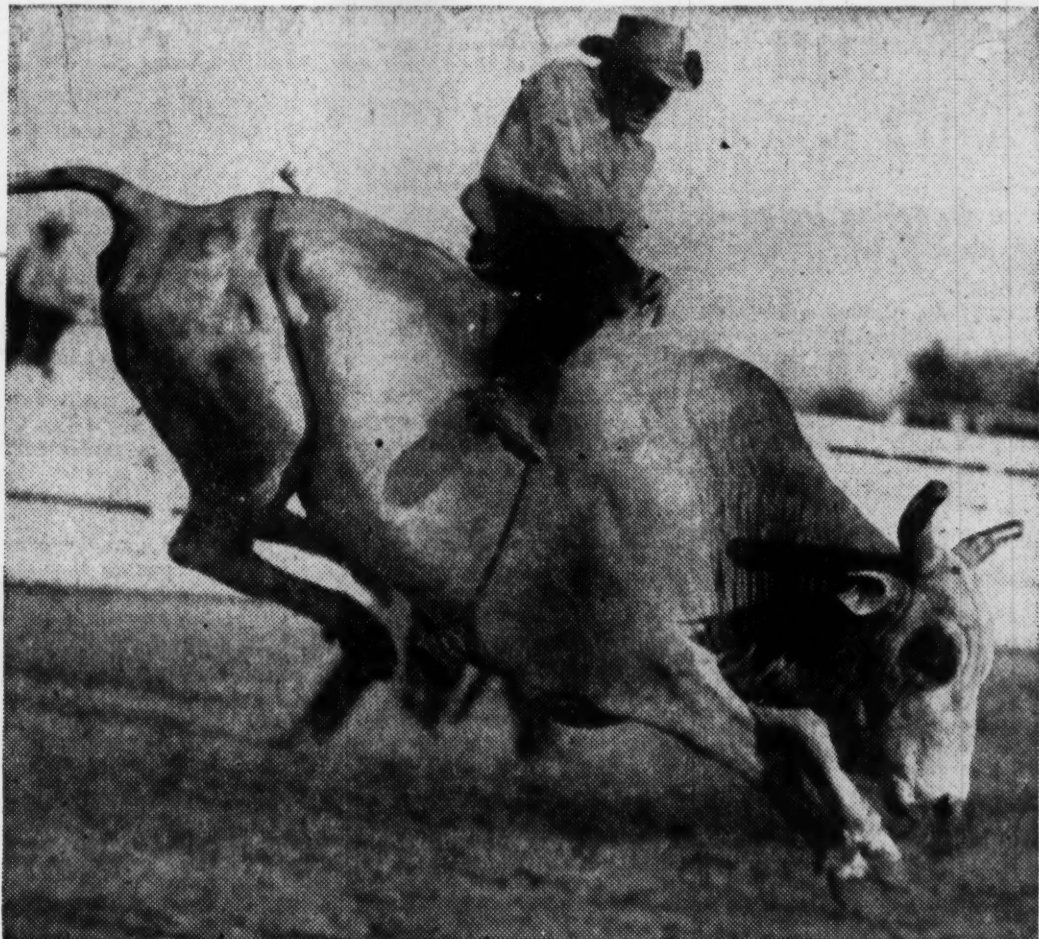

Weed, of Riverside, finished first in the field with Vaughn and Mell, of Druid Hills, taking second and third honors. Crossing the line fourth was Mason, of Riverside.

The order of other finishers was as follows: Delaney, Riverside; Stone, Strozier, Druid Hills; Hiller, Riverside; Peck, Druid Hills; Chose, Riverside, and Cook, Gellerstedt, Druid Hills.

Pictor Runs First In Pimlico Event

BALTIMORE, Nov. 4.—(P)—W. L. Brann's Pictor lugged 123 pounds over a mile and three-sixteenths in the brisk time of 1:58 today to win the $10,000-added Pimlico Handicap at Pimlico and register his fifth successive stakes triumph.

The 4-year-old bay colt, which succeeded Chaldean as the star of the Brann stable, drove to a one-length victory over Mrs. Payne Whitney's Corydon, which took the place position by four lengths from Royce G. Martin's Halt.

RODEO ATTRACTION—One of the features of the rodeo at Ponce de Leon will be steer busting, as pictured above. While many folks can sling bull, rare indeed is the man who can ride one such as the Brahma bull shown here. Steer busting is considered far more dangerous than breaking a high-spirited colt.

THE TEAM ON TOP

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—Each section of the country can waste into numerous arguments about the leadership in its own broad domain, but there doesn't seem to be much left in the way of debate when it comes to naming the nation's all-around top team. The answer is Texas.

Dana Bible's Longhorns haven't the slightest interest in beating rival teams by a touchdown or a point. Their main idea seems to be complete annihilation, combining the best wrecking qualities of a cyclone, an avalanche and a tidal wave. And you can toss in a few grenades.

Just a few examples—Rice was good enough to beat Tulane, a southern powerhouse. Texas whipped Rice, 40 to 0. Southern Methodist was good enough to give a fine Fordham team a close scramble to the closing minute. Texas walloped Southern Methodist, 34 to 0. Texas A. & M. topped Arkansas, 7 to 0, while Texas ran up 48 points against the Arkansas delegation.

Minnesota's might is now established—but only by slender margins over Michigan and Northwestern. Fordham's backfield is one of the best. So is Mississippi's. Navy, Army and Notre Dame among others, not overlooking unbeaten Duquesne, are fine football teams. So is Duke. So are Alabama, Texas A. & M. and Stanford.

But they are not Texas. Comparative scores are too often misleading and unimportant—but not the official returns Texas hands out week after week.

What Texas Has

Recently I asked Dutch Meyer, of T. C. U., and Matty Bell, of Southern Methodist, just what Texas had. There was practically no difference in their joint replies.

"Texas," they said, "has all the top qualities other leading teams have and about twice as much of it. Texas has a line that can match the best of the backfields. Texas is a team that has speed, power, good passing, high class kicking, hard blocking, hard tackling, experience and poise. And all this runs at least three deep."

"I'd hate to have a bet on beating her third team," one coach remarked.

It is well known that Matty Bell and S. M. U. were pointing for this game—and pointing with a high-class squad. But the S. M. U. defense was ripped wide open by the running and passing attack of Layden, Crain, Doss, Martin and others and the S. M. U. offense could find no scoring opening through the Texas barricade.

Texas still has Baylor, T. C. U., unbeaten Texas A. & M. and Oregon in her road and the Longhorns are operating in a rugged football circuit. But at the moment they are heading one of the wildest stampedes football has known in a long time.

Army and Navy

It is cheerful news to see Army and Navy so far up the list at this November spot. Navy's strength was known from the season's start but Army's record and her able all around play against Notre Dame under wrecking conditions

Cowboys Ride Brahma Steers At Poncey Park

Thrilling Performances on Wild Bovines to Open Monday.

"Ride 'em, cowboy" takes on a real meaning when the wild Brahma steers pour out of the chutes. Spectators at the championship rodeo to be sponsored by the Young Matrons' Circle for the benefit of the Tallulah Falls school next Monday through Friday at Ponce de Leon park will witness real thrills when daring cowboys attempt to ride one of these mammoth critters.

Riders of the wild steer take a great risk of life and limb. To make a qualified ride on one of these brutes is only half the battle. Next is to get away without being trampled or gored into eternity. All the rider has to keep him on the back of a wild steer is his hand hold on a loose rope passed under the steer's middle. He can use only one hand. The cowbell on the steer is there only to make a noise and create anger and excitement. The rules say that a rider is allowed only eight seconds to make the ride.

Brahma steers are a comparatively modern cross-breed, with blood of the sacred cattle of India, from which they derive the name "Brahma," mingled with the blood of this country's native beef cattle of the southwest.

RUDOLPH UPSET.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 4.—(P)—Irving Crane, of Livonia, N. Y., knocked Erwin Rudolph, of Cleveland, out of his first place tie for the lead in the world's pocket billiards championship today with a 125-to-51 decision in 13 innings.

Stanford seems to be on her way to another Rose Bowl visit, although California is moving up again.

Three teams that have advanced rapidly since earlier defeats are Alabama, Mississippi and Missouri. They are among the best today. Oklahoma is also coming along with a zip and a rush. To this list you can also add Ossie Solem's Syracuse team, now one of the eastern tops.

The main tangle at the moment concerns Texas and Texas A. and M. Will the winner here look to the Rose Bowl or remain at Dallas for the Cotton Bowl show? Also would the Pacific Coast conference look to Duke or Texas for her Pasadena pageant? Just at this mid-autumn juncture Fordham, Duke and Texas are the three first choices, well in front of the others. The surest way out for the Cotton Bowl at Dallas would be to have Texas and Texas A. and M. battle to a draw when they meet later on this month.

WPA Cage Loops Organize Tonight

The final organization meeting of the City Parks Department and the WPA basketball leagues will be held at the Y. M. C. A. at 8 o'clock tonight.

Players' contracts and fees are to be turned in at that time. League play will begin the following week.

Aggies, Devils Early Choices In Cotton Bowl

Tide, Rebels, Maroons Possible Contestants at New Orleans or Miami

By BILL BONI.

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—(P)—Stanford against Navy in the Rose Bowl; Fordham against Texas in the Sugar Bowl; Duke against Texas A. & M. in the Cotton Bowl, and Syracuse against Alabama in the Orange Bowl—there is a strictly tentative but possible lineup of the post-season football games to be played next New Year's Day.

Drafting such a lineup is a hazardous proposition this far in advance of the regular season's close. But there is sufficient evidence on hand to show these pairings are more than wishful thinking.

Stanford, a good bet though by no means a cinch to return to the Rose Bowl, is reported to favor Navy as its top choice for an eastern opponent. In the southern part of California—where the Rose Bowl is located—there is strong sentiment backing the Midlands. However, the chief problem here would be special dispensation from Naval Academy authorities. Under the Academy's national emergency set-up the current seniors will be graduated December 19 and promptly will be assigned to active duty.

DUKE NOT LIKED.

If Navy is not available, Texas probably would be next in line, and considerable pressure already is being brought to bear in favor of the Longhorns, currently the country's No. 1 team. Duke did not impress coast observers in its 1939 Rose Bowl loss to Southern California, while Fordham, the east's top team, gets hardly any mention.

But the Rams figure very prominently in Sugar Bowl and Cotton Bowl discussion, especially since, with only Pittsburgh, St. Mary's and New York U. still to play, they stand an extra-fine chance of finishing unbeaten and untied.

Cotton Bowl sponsors point to the fact Fordham lost a 13-12 decision there to Texas A. and M. a year ago, and would like to return to seek revenge for that defeat. But in New Orleans unofficial sentiment also is high on the Rams, since it is felt a New York team would bring in a crowd with money to spend and, furthermore, Catholic. Fordham, would be a "natural" in predominantly Catholic New Orleans.

RAMS LIKE ORLEANS.

A Fordham official, asked which would be Fordham's preference, also seemed to favor New Orleans, since his answer was, "Well, we've been to the Cotton Bowl," and indicated the Rams would have no trouble in any case getting university sanction for a post-season venture.

As for Texas, its attitude is a secret outside of the fact that Coach Dana Bible has said in previous years that if his team ever

Goat-Line Punch Still Sought by Tech Crowd

Jacket Backs Too Small With Opposing Defense Drawn In; Squad Displays Spirit.

By JOHNNY BRADBERRY.

Search for one or more scoring plays from within the 15-yard line is still going on at Georgia Tech.

After the Yellow Jackets marched four times to within the Duke 15 last Saturday and failed to score, one of the most rabid fans walked into Coach Bill Alexander's dressing room with a couple of newspaper pictures in his hand.

"Coach," he announced happily, "here are two plays which can't be stopped. If you'd had them against Duke, Tech would have won the game. They are the greatest I've ever seen and they are."

"Wait a minute, brother," Coach Alex interrupted. "Just give me one of them."

Much of the Yellow Jacket scrimmage yesterday was devoted to the development of plays which will gain near the enemy goal line. The varsity was given the ball on the Red Devil 15 and 10-yard lines for about 30 minutes but managed to score only a couple of times.

The Tech backs are too small to pound their way into pay-dirt with the defense drawn in close. Such lack of power will probably cause them to resort to deception when and if they get close to the Kentucky goal line Saturday at Grant Field.

DUKE PROVED WEAKNESS.

The need for some scoring punch was never more emphasized than by pictures of the Duke battle. Of course, the Jacket passing attack probably would have been better and more dangerous if Johnny Bosch had been playing rather than Bobby Sheldon, who played a fine game but lacks the game experience of the chunky little veteran.

However, you can't rely solely on passes, even Bosch's, and that's why the Tech coaches were stressing running plays in the scrimmage.

The varsity also worked some on defense against Wildcat plays as presented by the Red Devils. The line smothered most plays but occasionally one of the subs would dart through a hole for 10 or 15 yards gain and occasionally a pass would click for a gain.

LOTS OF SPIRIT.

There was a lot of spirit shown during the workout and the boys are out to win their third game of the season. A victory over Kentucky would give them a 2-1 record within conference competition, which isn't at all bad.

Most of the boys who saw a lot of action against the Blue Devils took little or no part in the rough work. However, they will get theirs this afternoon when a similar drill is scheduled.

More time will be devoted to defense, however, as the Jackets face a pretty tough job in stepping the speedy Wildcat backs.

Atlanta Junior May Open Test Against 'Gator

Sinkwich, Kimsey Kick Well; Georgia's Supply of Tickets Gone.

By F. M. WILLIAMS.

ATHENS, Ga., Nov. 4.—Return of Harry Kuniansky, one of Georgia's best offensive guards, threw a note of cheer into the Bulldog camp today as Coach Wallace Butts sent his charges through the usual "rugged Tuesday" drill in preparation for Saturday's clash with Florida's rested Gators.

Kuniansky injured his knee in the Columbia game, and has not played since. He took part in a scrimmage Monday afternoon and came through in fine style.

The Atlanta junior is exceptionally fast and has been used more on offense this season than on defense. He is not rugged but he's a battler and his return to the squad will definitely lend strength to the battered Georgia line.

Although Coach Butts hasn't said so, Kuniansky might be given a starting assignment at right guard.

PASS DEFENSE.

Considerable emphasis was placed on pass defense and punting under pressure during today's drill. Cliff Kimsey and Frankie Sinkwich were both booting the ball far and high and Coach Butts might use both of them for punting purposes against Florida. In recent games, the job has been Kimsey's all alone.

Sinkwich, incidentally, will be the man of the hour against Florida.

It will be the first time many south Georgia and north Florida fans have ever seen the Bulldog bludgeon in action. He missed last year's Florida game because of an injury.

Those fans who have been fortunate enough to see him go, however, are wondering just how long he can keep running over and around first-class opposition. He has averaged well over 100 yards per game this season, running up 117 against Auburn last week despite the fact the Tigers admittedly set their defense to stop Sinkwich.

WILL BE READY.

Coach Tom Lieb, whose Floridians are refreshed after a lay-off last week, has been quoted as saying Sinkwich is the best back his team will see this season, but he adds Florida "will be ready for him and all his Georgia company."

The tricky Florida coach may have devised a way to stop the "fireball" and if he has Georgia will have little chance for a victory.

Georgia fans, though, are going to have to see before they believe, which probably accounts for the record-breaking advance sale of tickets.

Johnny Broadnax, in charge of ticket sales here, says his office has been returning checks for Florida tickets for more than a week now and that not even one is available.

"It's the first time I can remember I couldn't find some kind of a ticket somewhere," Broadnax declared.

Basketball

In a last-moment sport Gas Company defeated Milledgeville, 32 to 17, in the feature game of the third annual Y. M. C. A. basketball tournament which completed its second night of play yesterday.

Turner turned in 14 points to lead Gasco. Columbia Seminary romped on the Sons of Pericles, 51 to 16, with Ned Iverson netting 24 points. The Dental College Gulls won by forfeit from Shelbyville. Erikson Manufacturing, formerly the North Side Club, won by forfeit from John H. Harland.

Some games were played Monday night and found the White Provision Company and the Citizens and Southern Bank squads advancing in the championship bracket, lowering Alpha and the Atlanta Constitution. Nix led the barrage on the hoops for White with 14 counters and was followed by Tuck with 14 and Garrett with 12.

The Constitution, winners of the jousting in their league last season, were downed 42-23 by the bankers. Tiner, Simpson and Whitely led the scoring, while Keith starred for the defeated five. Monday's results:

train speed. The beating of wings was audible at a great distance.

The birds sailed on in formation but changed their attitude about lighting as they came closer over Norris lake. They had spotted movement somewhere along the lake. Some unwary hunter had moved around his duck blind, had committed the cardinal sin of duck hunting.

So the squadron circled to the right and went almost out of sight before turning back.

Once again they came whistling over the rim of the sun, which was almost completely obscured by a fog bank. The lake itself resembled an inferno with the great clouds of vapor rising from the water.

We waited patiently for the ducks to come on in again. But once more, as they seemed about to descend, something happened to send them into another steep bank—and they were off to distant parts.

They repeated this maneuver several times, and we were certain that it was movement on the lake that caused it—because no band of duck cares to fly about for any long length of time when there is a lake around.

The moral of the story simply is to give a duck credit for having an acute sense of danger. A duck can spot a human miles away, and the slightest movement in a blind often tips the feathered flock off to the presence of an enemy. And they won't dive in at all.

Another Trek The day before, John Martin and I had gone scouting along the banks of the Flint river for miles but had been unable to find any duck life, other than in backwood residents' yards.

So, failing to have any luck in a blind—largely, it seems, because it was June-in-January weather in November—we decided to make the long trek along the banks of the lazy Yellow river.

On account of low water it wasn't feasible to float down in a boat, so we rode to the starting point in an automobile, and walked upstream for a half dozen miles, fighting bramble bushes along the way.

All we got for the trouble was exercise . . . and plenty of that.

Martin spotted only two ducks—a mallard hen and drake—about 200 yards ahead. But before we had approached within gunshot, they were gone.

I happened, unwittingly, to tell Coach Bill Alexander about the experience, and Doug Wycoff was sitting in the office.

Wycoff first told of the flight of ducks in his native Arkansas—flights so thick they hide the sun as they descend upon the rice fields. He told also of a recent experience when a flock of Canadian geese, mistaking a wet street for a lake, blocked traffic for quite a spell.

Then Coach Alex took it up and told how, in his favorite duck grounds in Louisiana, or was it in Arkansas, too, folks sit along the railroad track on boxes and shoot until they're tired. Then they retire to a rough shanty for a nap and come out, when ready, to conclude the limit.

At day's end, a train comes along to fetch them back home with the bag.

Oh, well.

Sure Enough Magazine Editor Lamar Ball just walked in to inquire about the story from Florida on the forthcoming Georgia-Florida game at Jacksonville.

"I notice it said something about the 'Gator coach assuring the players that Sinkwich is all he's CRACKED UP to be."

"Well, I'd say the boy is cracked up all right, wouldn't you?"

Powers' Ferry Aggies, Devils Plays Florida Early Choices In 6-Man Tilt In Cotton Bowl

The Powers' Ferry school six-man football team will tackle its toughest opponent of the season Thursday afternoon when it meets the strong Florida High school club from Tallahassee at Tucker, Georgia.

The Powers' Ferry school team has an impressive record of winning four while losing one so far this season and hope to gain revenge for a defeat handed them by the Floridians last season.

Feature player for the Powers' Ferry team is Tom Dickey, an end, who has scored over 80 points this season. The entire team has amassed 127 points to the opposition's 83.

Other stars for the Atlanta outfit include Edward Covington, outstanding blocker; Paul Joseph, a young man who came to Atlanta from France last April and had never seen a football game before; Sanford Pottinger, Jack Norris, Bill Ebersole, James Giboney and Lester Hardwick.

The largest man on the team weighs 155 pounds. A party is planned for the visiting team at the school on Piedmont road after the game.

The starting lineup for the Atlantians will include Dickey and Joseph at ends; Pottinger at center, and Covington, Indell and Ebersole in the backfield.

Game time is 3:30 o'clock.

Dean Hanover Foals Will Go on Market

HARRISBURG, Pa., Nov. 4.—(AP)—The first foals by Dean Hanover, famed trotter, who smashed nine world records in three years of campaigning, will be put on the market at the third annual Harrisburg action sale which opens tomorrow.

More than 300 other trotters and pacers are scheduled for the block during the three-day event, but the yearlings by the great champion from the Hanover Shoe Farms have stolen all advance interest.

Bob Johnson, Purdue's center, has played five games this year without relief. . . . But naturally you expect a Boilermaker to be an iron man.

British Planes Fire Fuel Tanks At Cherbourg

Results of Far-flung Day Raid Reported by RAF.

LONDON, Nov. 4.—(AP)—British warplanes left fuel tanks on the Cherbourg peninsula in flames late today after a series of night blows against French harbors, German shipping off the Frisian Islands, and a fish oil factory at Bergso, Norway.

One fighter plane was reported missing in the daylight sweep which included attacks on a Nazi airdrome, freight trains, Nazi troop detachments, and gun positions in northern France.

But no planes were lost in last night's bombing operations which had these results:

Damage to at least one big supply ship off the Frisian Islands; hits on docks at St. Nazaire; four direct hits by dive bombers on the Bergso fish oil plant and on oil tanks and storehouses which were left "flattened and in ruins."

Athens' Airport To Be Enlarged

ATHENS, Ga., Nov. 4.—Contract for development of the Athens airport, authorized in a recent CAA grant of $210,000, will probably be let in December, with actual construction starting before January 1, Clarke county officials announce.

The proposed improvements will raise the standard of the local airport. Preliminary engineering work has already been completed.

Two additional runways, each 4,200 feet long and 500 feet wide, will be constructed and paved. It is expected that the original grant from the CAA of $210,000 will be increased to at least $300,000, but Clarke county must buy the additional land needed and construct the hangars, which it will do, officials state.

Students at Gordon Are to Present Play

BARNESVILLE, Ga., Nov. 4.—The Gordon College Dramatists began rehearsals this week on the first in a series of plays they expect to present at the school this year. The farce, "Ready-Made Family," is co-directed by Professors T. F. Walker and J. W. Welch, and includes a cast of about 10 Gordon students.

Roles are taken in the play by Geraldine Lifsey, Sadie Bankston, Ellen Smith, Shirley Wiesbram, Madge Ann Yawn and Hugh Bush, Jimmy Coker, Powell Bush and Howard LaVine.

The students expect to present this play sometime in December, following the faculty play now in rehearsal.

Joint Fund Drive Set In Baldwin County

MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga., Nov. 4.—The annual Red Cross and Community Chest drive for Baldwin county will open November 12 and continue through Nov. 30, according to Colonel J. H. Jenkins, chairman of the county Red Cross unit.

Stewart Wooten has been named chairman of the entire drive, while the Rev. R. W. Oakley will have charge of the men's division and Miss Florida Allen will have charge of the women's division.

A number of volunteer workers will join in the county-wide canvass, it was said.

ORANGE BOWL BID.

The Orange Bowl committee, with a stadium in Miami (Fla.) that doesn't match the seating capacity of the other three and unable to offer the same inducements as the other Bowls, will be content to try for a pairing of colorful teams, which would provide a close game.

Outside of the teams already named, Alabama, Mississippi, Mississippi State and Missouri have been mentioned as Sugar Bowl possibilities, with unbeaten and untied Duquesne given only an outside chance. The same three southern teams, together with Vanderbilt and Miami, and Duquesne from the East rate in the Orange Bowl running.

The Sugar, Cotton and Orange Bowl sponsors say that so far they have made no definite contacts. Stanford will make no commitment until it is sure of going into the Rose Bowl, in which the host team controls choice of the visiting eleven.

Sir Kenneth Lee, representative of the Industrial and Export Council of the British Board of Trade will speak before Atlanta businessmen at 7:30 o'clock tonight at the Capital City Club.

Sir Kenneth is in this country seeking to establish stronger trade relations between Britain and the United States, both during the period of emergency and after the war.

He will arrive by plane this afternoon and will stop at the Henry Grady hotel.

SEISMOGRAPH UPSET.

Visitors at the Loomis Memorial Museum in the California park witnessed the seismograph register and trace what appeared to be the greatest seismic disturbance in the history. Later, it was discovered, the apparent earthquakes were caused by a fly crawling across one of the delicate tracing needles.

HOWDY, KIDS—Myrtle, the mammoth matron of Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey's circus, arrives in town this morning at the head of her family of 49 ponderous pachyderms. Myrtle will not be receiving this morning, she'll be too busy pushing the wagons around for the big show which starts at 2:15 o'clock this afternoon and 8:15 o'clock tonight. But she'll be glad to see all her Atlanta friends in the menagerie tent either today or tomorrow. Be sure to bring peanuts.

It's Circus Day As Big Show Pulls Into City

First Performance Is Set for 2:15 This Afternoon.

It's circus day! At dawn this morning four long, silver streamlined trains, enameled in red and gold, will begin rolling onto the Southern siding at the old Highland avenue show grounds.

Myrtle, the ponderous pachyderm, will be here. And Gargantua and his winsome bride, Toto, traveling in their own suite which circus folk call the "Honey-moon Special."

Alfred Court is bringing his fearful troupe of lions, tigers, polar bears, giant ocelots, black panthers, leopards, jaguars, pumas, cougars — all the blood-thirsty beasts that the great trainer has gathered from the jungles of the world.

The Visconde Ponte da Barca, king of horsemen, will be at the head of his famous riding cohorts, mounted on world-famed steeds. Elly Ardely, vision of grace and beauty, is bringing the 60 winsome beauties of her Birdland Ballet. Everybody's coming, all the thousand animals and the 800 stars of the trapeze, the tight wire and the sawdust ring which make up Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey's greatest show on earth.

All this morning they will be getting ready, putting up the mammoth big top, modernized, this year, stream-lined, without poles and air-conditioned. By 1 o'clock this afternoon the menagerie and the famous Horse Fair will be open. The performance starts at 2:15 o'clock. Gates open at 7 o'clock tonight, with the big show getting under way at 8:15 o'clock.

Tickets for today's performance, and for tomorrow's show at the same hours, have already gone on sale in Liggett's at the Ansley.

Capitol Theater Features New Type Western

No Cattle and No Rustlers in 'The Cowboy and the Blonde.'

A whirlwind of romance and action is promised in "The Cowboy and the Blonde," which plays today and tomorrow at the Capitol theater, marking the first appearance of this picture in Atlanta.

The top featured roles are filled by Mary Beth Hughes and George Montgomery and others in the cast includes John Miljan and Alan Mowbray.

"The Cowboy and the Blonde" is a "different" western. There aren't any cattle rustlers, there aren't even any cattle. But there is a blonde, and a beautiful one at that. She's a temperamental movie star, who goes on a book-throwing blitz because her leading man can't act and that's where the handsome cowboy enters the picture.

Reduction Urged In Anti-Freeze Use

Declaring that motorists in the south protect their cars against sub-zero temperature which never occurs, R. R. Case, Chattanooga dePont Company specialist on anti-freeze mixtures, yesterday asked Atlantans to buy only as much anti-freeze as is absolutely necessary, due to a shortage brought on by the defense program.

Though dealers have a sufficient supply on hand now to protect against any cold that may be anticipated here, no surplus can be obtained, and present stocks may be exhausted unless conservation to reduce civilian consumption from 25 to 40 per cent is practiced.

Four quarts of ethylene glycol, a permanent type anti-freeze, protect the motor to 10 degrees above zero, and five quarts protect it to two degrees above zero. Three quarts of a methanol anti-freeze protect to 13 above zero, and four quarts to three above.

Oregon County Dislikes State, Wants to Secede to California

PORT ORFORD, Ore., Nov. 4.—(AP)—Curry county doesn't like Oregon any more and wants to secede to California.

The county court said so, with a formal petition for annexation; its special secession committee said so to California's Governor Culbert L. Olson; and its spokesman, Mayor Gilbert E. Gable, of Port Orford, said so to the Portland Chamber of Commerce.

Oregon's Governor Charles A. Sprague dispatched a communique to the Grants Pass Cavemen, a publicity-deavouring group of skin-clad "aborigines," adjuring them to "capture and hold Del Norte county, California, if border raids start."

Governor Olson told the secession committee that he was sympathetic.

Oregon's attorney general, I. H. Van Winkle, said Curry county can secede if it gets (1) congressional approval, (2) favorable action of the legislatures of the two states and (3) the ok of the people of Oregon.

New Traffic Rules Outlined For Decatur

Proposals Would Provide 4 1-Way Streets, Parking Limit.

A revamping of traffic regulations in Decatur's business section, to provide one-way traffic on four streets and a one-hour limit on parking, instead of two hours, will be proposed to the Decatur city commission Friday night by Commissioner Vernon Frank.

Half-hour parking also would be put in effect in front of the three banks facing the DeKalb county courthouse square, under the plan.

One-way sections are proposed as follows:

East Court Square would carry southbound traffic only.

Sycamore street would carry eastbound traffic only from East Court Square to Church street.

Church street would be one-way from Sycamore to East Ponce de Leon, carrying only northbound traffic.

East Ponce de Leon would be one-way from Church street to East Court Square, with west-bound traffic only.

Commissioner Frank said he has talked with numerous Decatur businessmen and that nearly all agreed with him as to the advisability of the new regulations.

Amazing way to be mentally alert... physically fit!

A truly marvelous change can be brought about by overcoming miserable digestive complaints, loss of appetite, underweight, paleness and sluggishness—all by two important steps—

Restore vital digestive juices in the stomach... energize your body with rich, red blood. Here's how!

If you are one of those unfortunate who have worked under a strain, failed to eat the proper foods, have been vexed by overtaxing worries, or have suffered with colds, flu, or other illness... yet have no organic trouble or focal infection... and your red blood cells have become reduced in vitality and number... if your stomach digestion refuses to work properly, then here is good news for you!

S.S.S. Tonic is especially designed to build back deficient blood strength... to revive and stimulate those stomach juices which digest the food so your body can make proper use of it in rebuilding worn-out tissue. These two important results enable you to enjoy the food you eat... to make use of it as nature intended. Thus you may get new vitality.

Build sturdy health Yes, when you tone up the stomach and get its digestive juices flowing freely, you should enjoy again that old-time zest for food... stomach digestive juices should vanish. S.S.S. Tonic also gives you the mineral matter in soluble and digestive form to restore your blood to its rich, red color... to its so-called fighting strength... this makes for better body tone... muscular and mental freshness!

Two sizes all drug stores ter body tone... muscular and mental freshness! Because S.S.S. is in liquid form it begins its work as soon as you take it. Surprising results may be had by making the S.S.S. treatment a part of your daily diet. Thousands and thousands of users have testified to the benefits S.S.S. Tonic has brought to them and scientific research shows that it usually gets results—that's why so many say "S.S.S. Tonic builds sturdy health and makes you feel like yourself again." © S.S.S. Co.

Plane Worker Facing Trial On 24 Charges

Federal Jury Indicts Youth Accused of Sabotage.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 4.—(AP)—A federal grand jury today indicted Michael William Etzel, 22, accused of damaging Martin B-26 bombers being manufactured for the War Department.

The jury presented 24 separate counts against the young painter, arrested at work at the Martin plant a week ago by Federal Bureau of Investigation agents. Etzel was accused in 18 counts of slashing electric wires in center sections of 18 bombing planes; in four counts of snipping wires in nose section of four bombers, and in two counts of cutting tubing in two planes.

Draw Indicated In Party Fight In Pennsylvania

Democrats Appear Victors in Cook County; G.O.P. in New Jersey.

By The Associated Press. Returns from Pennsylvania's state-wide contest for two judicial offices indicated a draw between the Republicans and Democrats yesterday. The Republican candidate led for the supreme court and the Democratic aspirant was ahead in the superior court race.

Mayor Cornelius J. Scully, of Pittsburgh, Democratic organization candidate, held a lead of only a few thousand votes over Harold D. Denny, Republican, in his fight for re-election on the basis of returns at midnight. Returns from 391 of the city's 419 precincts gave for mayor: Scully 106,357; Denny 101,005.

Maintaining an early three-to-one lead, Edward J. Jeffries headed toward a second two-year term as mayor of Detroit. Unofficial returns from 500 of the city's 1,015 districts gave this compilation at 11:45 o'clock last night: Jeffries 95,950, recorder's Judge Joseph A. Gillis 32,662.

Details, Rogell Running. Principal interest in the municipal election, however, centered in the contests for council in which 18 nominees sought nine posts.

Returns from 300 precincts showed the former six incumbents, including Charles E. (Gus) Dorais, University of Detroit athletic director and football coach, out in front. William G. (Billy) Rogell, former Detroit Tiger shortstop, was running third. The fourth, an early unofficial returns from Kentucky's general election indicated apparent approval of two proposed amendments to the state constitution and followed normal lines in voting for members of the general assembly.

In the Louisville mayoralty race, Wilson W. Wyatt, Democratic nominee, held a 473-vote lead over Republican Robert J. Ball in 10 of the 546 precincts, Wyatt with 908 and Ball with 435. Incomplete returns indicated a decisive victory for a Democratic-sponsored coalition ticket of candidates for the Cook county, Ill., superior court and two municipal court vacancies over a Republican slate which had been actively supported by Governor Dwight H. Green.

Tobin Appears Elected. Young Maurice J. Tobin appeared re-elected mayor of Boston on the basis of unofficial returns, defeating aging former Mayor James M. Curley, his one-time political sponsor, who at 67 failed for the fourth successive time in an attempted comeback.

Republicans apparently clinched anew their traditional control of the New Jersey legislature, despite a state-wide stumping tour of Democratic Governor Charles Edison in quest of support. Incumbent mayors in Connecticut's four most populous cities, one of them a socialist and the others Democrats, were re-elected, all of them increased pluralities over their 1939 victory margins.

Italian Antiaircraft Shot Balbo After Mercy Flight, Officer Says

TORONTO, Nov. 4.—(AP)—A startling new version of the death of Marshal Italo Balbo, declaring he was shot down by Italian antiaircraft after carrying deserters British armored car men to an Italian hospital, was published today by the Toronto Star.

The Star quoted Air Commodore Raymond Collishaw, who had charge of all British air operations during the British sweep of Libya. He arrived in Canada last week to take up a new post of undisclosed nature. Collishaw was quoted as saying Marshal Balbo was alone in an Italian bomber when it was struck by a direct hit from an Italian antiaircraft gun in the Libyan harbor of Tobruk on June 29, 1940.

However, Italy said at the time of the crash that nine others, including prominent Italians, died in the crash of the plane.

The Italians said British aircraft shot down the bomber but the British foreign office said Marshal Balbo did not "perish in combat with the RAF" and pointed out that Balbo had been opposed "to the policy of harnessing Italy to Hitler's war machine."

The Star quotes Collishaw as saying Balbo heard of the plight of the British soldiers, lost and dying of thirst and starvation far out in the desert, got into a bombing plane, took an escort of two fighters and flew to the rescue. The story continues: "Having picked them up he flew the troops to an Italian hospital, then started back to Tobruk, his headquarters.

"Balbo was alone in the bomber at the time, the two escorting fighters being on his flanks. At the moment when he came back over Tobruk our forces opened a bombing attack on the town, a queer coincidence.

"Our men were bombing from 20,000 feet and Balbo flew in at 2,000 feet. Antiaircraft batteries on shore were going full-out, but not very effectively. However, when Balbo came over, an Italian cruiser in the harbor, one which we later sank and whose hull is still being used by our men, opened fire and struck the marshal's plane with a direct hit.

"To add to the coincidence of the whole thing is the fact that some of our photographers had their lens on the marshal's plane at the very moment it was struck.

"I had the picture of Balbo's plane cracking up and carried it for several months."
